Proposed police budget increase questioned

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

Members of the Romulus City Council met Monday evening for their second discussion of the proposed city budget.

Council members discussed the police budget which includes funding for three new cadets and an increase of 16 percent from last year.

"I just want to find out what are your (the police department's) goals within the ($3.2 million) budget," Councilman Peter Bergeron told Police Chief Charles Wilmoth and Mayor Beverly McAnally. "Everybody in the city would like to have a million dollar increase over a two-year period," Bergeron commented.

McAnally responded by reminding the city council that it was the city council that demanded that Romulus employ more police officers and more resources in the police department.

Bergeron asked for the future plans of the police department.

Wilmoth explained that the police department wanted to continue to put uniform officers on the street and make them visible in the community. "When I came to Romulus 2 1/2 years ago," Willmouth said, "The message I got was we want policemen on the street. We don't want them in the station, we want them out in the community."

> When I came to Romulus 2 1/2 years ago, the message I got was we want policemen on the street. We don't want them in the station, we want them out in the community.

Wilmoth said that since this approach was started, the crime rate has been down. "I guess if you get some kind of results from dollars that's what I'm looking at," the chief said. He added that the neighborhood watch program was the biggest community supporter and that the police were getting much more involved in schools and youth programs.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry inquired about the hiring of minorities in the police department. "We're a community of 15-20 percent blacks and we have three or four, two or three, that's unexceptable," Raspberry said.

"We've done everything we can, we've gone out to churches and everywhere but we can't make anyone be a police officer," McAnally said, citing the difficulty in recruiting black officers for the police department.

Bergeron asked why Romulus police patrolled I-94 when 99 percent of the people do not live in Romulus.

Wilmoth explained that the Romulus police were working with the State Police. There is one Romulus police car working on the freeway with seven other state police cars from Taylor and Van Buren, according to Wilmoth, in a program that has been operational since December.

"The state thought that was a good program and now, by a state grant, our officers will be on I-94 and the state will pay for them," Wilmoth said.

Bergeron, however, was not satisfied. He accused Romulus of having a traffic-oriented police force that only used the police cars that had radar, a charge which Wilmoth denied. "We have 22 cars and only five have radar. That's not a traffic-oriented police force."

Bergeron said, "You have five (police cars with radar) on the street at one time. You have 22 cars sitting over there and everybody's asking me, 'Why don't we have more cars on the street?' and they're down in the parking lot." No final budget decision was made. No other budget session has been scheduled as yet by council members.

Getting a 'Head Start'

Three-and four year olds at Romulus Head Start did their part during Keep America Beautiful Week by cleaning up the community building where their school is located. Bobbee Valleau, Head Start teacher, explained to her class that it is wrong to litter. "We try to explain what is behind the activity before actually undertaking it," Valleau explained. "Then the kids will appreciate what we're doing more. They understand that the building looks better after we clean it." Valleau also plans on having her students plant some seeds around the building in the future.

Three and 4-year-olds pick up the litter around the Head Start building on Beverly Road with the help of teacher Cynthia Harvey and parent volunteer Teresa Goodmin. Block appointed to council seat

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

Members of the Romulus City Council have appointed Fred "Junior" Block to fill the council vacancy created by the resignation of Alan Lambert.

Council members voted 5-1 in favor of the appointment with Councilman Randolph Gear casting the dissenting vote. Block was narrowly defeated by Gear in the November 1987 election.

Block said, following the vote, that he is glad to be back and acknowledged that he had continued to attend council meetings whenever possible even though he was defeated at the polls.

"I wasn't going to run away just because of that," he explained. "I like Romulus and it's great being back serving the community again. It's an honor to be back."

Block said he will approach the city council meetings as he did during his 16 years of service. "I don't need to really talk too much. If I do my homework beforehand, I can go in ready to vote. What more do I have to do?"

Police seeking 3 in local robbery

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus police officers are seeking three men accused of robbing the Total gas station at Middlebelt Road and Eureka last Friday.

According to police reports, three black men entered the station at approximately 4:25 a.m. One of the men was armed, according to the station attendant. One of the men walked behind the counter and told the attendant to open the cash register and give him the money.

While the three men were still in the station, a vehicle drove up and apparently frightened them, police said. The three men left on foot with the money from the register and went east along Eureka Road while the other two headed south along Middlebelt.

Tracking dogs were used when the police arrived on the scene but the men were not located.

There were no injuries reported in the incident.

Police request anyone with information regarding the incident phone the Romulus Police Department at 941-8400.

Junior High School Band heads to Florida

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

The Romulus Junior High School Symphonic Band received a First Division rating at the State Band Festival May 7 at the senior high school. Included in the ratings were a one from each of the four judges at the festival. This marked the third time in the history of Romulus schools that a band has received all ones at both district and state festivals.

Individual letter ratings included 18 A's and two B's.

Thirteen bands and five orchestras competed for ratings. Only two of the 13 bands received straight ones in the ratings.

> . . .Our students came through under pressure for our school's ninth consecutive one rating at the festival.
> — Richard Kruse
> Band Director

Band Director Richard Kruse was pleased with his students' performance. "Everybody was concerned because only the top groups make it to the state festival," Kruse said. "But our students came through under pressure for our school's ninth consecutive one rating at the festival." Kruse went on to say that the judges commented about the great sound of the symphonic band and how much they enjoyed listening to the band. All participants, including the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, seemed impressed with the high school facilities, Kruse said.

The symphonic band will now travel to Epcot Center in Orlando Fla., for a special performance commemorating the 150th anniversary of music in the public schools. The band will perform an all pops concert May 27 at the World Showcase Plaza located next to the famous Epcot Center Sphere. Disney World officials have scheduled the program for 7 p.m. and will amplify the performance throughout the Epcot Center area where thousands are expected for Memorial Day weekend, according to Kruse.

Eighty students and 12 chaperones will depart from Romulus Junior High School May 25, by bus, and return Monday evening.

Faust sponsors 'Say No' Rally Monday

A "Say NO to Drugs" rally is planned for 7 p.m. next Monday in the Romulus High School auditorium.

The rally is being sponsored by the Romulus School district and State Sen. William Faust.

The event is free and all Romulus residents are encouraged to attend.

The object of the rally will be to learn how the community can set goals together and be successful without using drugs or alcohol, according to a spokesman from Faust's office.

Several guest speakers are scheduled including Commander Gilbert Hill of the Detroit Police Department, best known as Eddie Murphy's commander in "Beverly Hills Cop I and II.

Steve Fraser, Olympic gold medalist in Greco Roman wrestling, and Lem Barney, who was an All-Pro cornerback seven times with the Detroit Lions are also scheduled to speak.

Experts including Jeanne Knopf-Deroche, founder of Knopf Company, a Community Substance Abuse Consultant; Sally Repeck, director of the Wayne division of United Community Services; David Steinrock, director of Southeast Michigan Substance Abuse Services; and Michael J. Cahalan, director of the Chemical Dependence Program at Wyandotte General Hospital are also scheduled speakers.

Co-presidents of Romulus Students Against Drunk Drivers, Denise Corder and Leslie Truman will also be speaking.

Romulus Michigan Week festival has historical theme and events

Romulus residents will celebrate Michigan Week today until Sunday, May 28 with a long list of events planned.

Carnival rides and various contests are scheduled each day through Sunday, May 22. Special occasion days – for business, government, education and science – are set the following week.

Of particular importance during the week, however, will be Romulus Heritage Day, on which residents can walk back into school history. It will be on that day – Saturday, May 21 – that the Romulus Historical Society will recognize the former Romulus Elementary School, 11165 Olive St., as a local historic site. The dedication ceremony begins at 2 p.m.

The building now houses the Romulus Police Department.

The block upon which the police department now stands was used for educational purposes since the early days in Romulus. The first District 1 Schoolhouse was moved to the site in 1892, when the village of Romulus moved from Pullens Corners. Also on this block, the first Romulus High School was built, facing Bibbins Street. This was a two-story, red, brick structure.

The present brick building, now the police department, was built in 1923. Grades kindergarten to 12th grade were taught at the schoolhouse until a junior-senior high school was built at 11401 Olive St. The new secondary school was complete with a gymnasium.

Historical facts such as these will be included in the program Saturday. In addition, former teachers, coaches and students will receive recognition.

After the ceremony, historical society members and society President Pearl Varner will tour the first schoolhouse, now on Hunt Street, and the Carl W. Morris post office next door. It is here that guests may view the progress society members have made in restoring and renovating the building into the future Romulus Historical Museum.

Refreshments will be served.

Youth offered summer jobs

More than 15,000 youths across the state between the ages of 18 and 21 are expected to sign up and join the Michigan Youth Corps. as the program begins a sixth vear in operation in June.

State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) said the 1988 should be the most productive to date, as 112,000 people are expected to have been served in the program since it began in 1983.

"The Youth Corps has provided more than 95,000 summer jobs to young people so far," said Faust. "This year, when the 1988 sign-up is completed, we expect the program to have provided over 112,000 young adults with summer jobs."

Youth Corps projects begin June 1 and continue for 10 weeks. Applications are available at local schools.

Romulus Youth Assistance Program seeks volunteers

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

The Romulus Youth Assistance Program, affiliated with the Romulus Help Center, has been helping adolescents deal with problems they face growing up.

Youths, generally between the ages of 7 and 17, are referred to the program by schools or a police petition, explained Mark Small, director of the program.

The schools refer students who have problems with truancy or behavior.

Youths referred by the police have committed lesser crimes, such as vandalism or running away. By successfully completing the youth assistance program the charges against the juvenile will be dropped, Small said.

Small assesses the referred adolescents and talks to their families before they enter the program. He then matches the youths with volunteer counselors.

Each volunteer counselor must complete a five-session training program before being assigned to a youth. The training is provided through the youth assistance program, and focuses on the various approaches to helping youth, Small said.

The training sessions teach the volunteers basic "helping" techniques and non-judgmental skills which enable them to understand the problems facing the youths without judging them, Small explained.

One training session is strictly devoted to the number one problem facing young people today, substance abuse, Small said. Many of the youths referred to the youth assistance program either have a substance abuse problem or are exposed to substance abuse within their families.

> "Parents cannot make a volunteer divulge information on the youth. I will stop in in cases where the youth is endangered by that confidentiality."
> — Mark Small
> Program Director

Small observed that alcohol is the major problem facing teens, "Illegal drugs such as cocaine are much less accepted by youth. Alcohol is the accepted drug and youths learn activities involving alcohol at home."

How does the program work? The volunteer, once matched with an adolescent, meets the child and the family in Small's office. Number one on the agenda is the establishment of program goals. The goals are geared toward the individual's problem.

At that time, the child and family must also sign a commitment to the program by being active participants in family counseling and parent groups.

Small has found that typical problems faced by youths in the program stem from underlying family problems. "Whether it is lack of communication, one-parent homes, substance abuse or a teen pregnancy, the source of the problem is usually the kids' home lives," Small said. "This program is designed to improve the family atmosphere and help the kids become more family-oriented in a positive way and that will only happen if the families get involved."

The second meeting brings the volunteer counselor, adolescent and family together in the home setting. After that, the counselor and adolescent meet wherever they feel most comfortable once a week for 1-2 hours. They concentrate their efforts on reaching established goal. Normally counseling lasts six to eight months.

Thus far, according to Small, the program, which started last year, has been successful. "Overall, 60 to 80 percent of the youths have successfully completed the program, and the rate is even higher for those on police petition," said Small.

Small stressed that the volunteer-adolescent relationship is confidential, "Parents cannot make a volunteer divulge information on the youth. I will step in in cases where the youth is endangered by that confidentiality."

In addition, Small said that the volunteer is on a first name only basis because, "a youth can rely too heavily on the volunteer which defeats the purpose of the program which aims to develop a bond between the youth and family."

More volunteers are needed, Small said, and urged anyone interested to contact him at 942-7585.

Bottles bring big profits for school

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

The Romulus Junior High School PTO decided to try something different as a fundraising effort last Saturday and the gamble paid off.

For the first time, the PTO organized a group of members and students to go door-to-door in four different subdivisions around Romulus collecting bottles and cans to be turned in for deposit refunds.

The group worked from 8:30 in the morning until 7:30 that night collecting, sorting and returning the cans and bottles.

Carol Crova, a PTO member, said, "We really did a great job. The bottle drive went well. We made about $400 and expect to do this again.

Jay's Market in Romulus donated chips and pop for the volunteers and the Wonder Thrift Shop provided discounts on food for the volunteers. The IGA redeemed the bottles for the group.

Participants in the activity included Pat and Jason Nea with their son Ronald; Leona Aniol; Theresa Pisarski; Danielle Slater; Cindy Rhoton and her daughter Jean; Tammy Damaron; Sherry and Sandy Lowry; Stephanie and Lynn Webb; Carol Crova and her daughter Mary; Alicia Fitzhugh; PTO president Kathy Goodman and daughter Michele; Sandy and Dan Bussard with children Heidi and Danny; and Vicki and Brian Smith.

Sandy and Dan Bassard were the chairpersons for the event.

According to Crova, the children participating in the fundraiser had a good time, "They thought it was all right. Not too much complaining went on."

Money from the bottle drive will go to the Romulus Junior High School PTO which has earmarked the funds for the junior high school awards banquet in June. Funds remaining will go into the savings bond program at the school which provides savings bonds as incentives for students who excel in academics.

Elementary schools plan group concert

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

Fifth-and sixth graders at Merriman, Hayti and Wick Elementary Schools will be participating in the Romulus Elementary Spring Music program.

On May 24 at 1 p.m. a musical program is planned at Merriman Elementary School under the direction of Deborah Street.

A second show at Hayti Elementary will be presented by Street and Gideon Pettway, band director at Hayti Elementary at 10:30 a.m. May 25.

That same night, Merriman and Hayti schools will be joined by Wick Elementary for a performance at the Romulus High School auditorium.

Street will be directing Merriman and Hayti fifth and sixth graders in the musical, Standing Room Only, which includes several famous broadway numbers including "Inka, Dinka Doo," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Oklahoma" and "On the Good Ship Lollipop."

Wick Elementary participants will perform choral selections under the direction of Gwen Nelson.

There is no charge for admission and the performances are open to the public.

Elderly man victimized

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

The home of an elderly man on Beverly Road was the site of a breaking and entering last week.

Police reports indicate that a neighbor of the victim reported seeing an individual running from the home at about 11:25 a.m. May 9. The neighbor provided a description of the man seen leaving the home to police.

Police responded to the call and found a window had been pried open. The homeowner was inside and unharmed, according to police reports and nothing was reported missing from the home.

The responding officers, with the help of tracking dogs, arrested 19-year-old Duane S. Bawcum of Westland at the corner of Merriman and Van Born Road.

Bawcum had apparently fled upon realizing that the house he broke into was occupied, police surmised.

The Wayne County Prosecuters Office authorized a warrant charging Bawcum with unlawful entry. He was arraigned in the 34th District Court and is awaiting a pretrial date.

New student advisor program starts day off right

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

Students at Romulus Junior High School have a unique and fun way of starting the day off right. Or at least that's what school officials hope.

Last fall Romulus Junior High School started a program that enabled students to get to know one particular advisor on a one-to-one basis. Advisory groups were set up and no more than 22 students were allowed in a group.

School starts out every day with a 25-minute group session where students and teachers participate in activities that help students grow.

Each month a different theme is introduced to students. The advisory committee meets before the theme is started to discuss what the goals and objectives of the month will be. Activities for the month are also planned.

This month the advisory groups will deal with "competition." According to Lynn Cleary, advisor and activities coordinator of the program, the competition theme is important, "Kids don't know how to compete. If they lose, they blame others. The object is to teach them that you can lose without worrying about it."

Going along with the theme, throughout the school different advisory groups can be found playing volleyball, ping pong, the computer game Nintendo, Pictionary, Trivial Pursuit and various other activities designed to teach students how to compete.

Other themes that were carefully thought out to aid students adjust to school included Me, Myself and I: Getting started, in September. That theme was geared toward orienting incoming seventh graders into junior high school life. "This them is great because seventh graders are so lost when they first start," Cleary commented.

After September, other themes included dealing with friends and getting along with others.

"The advisory groups were set up because the school felt kids were just coming to school, going to class, and that was it," Cleary said. "Now, (the advisors) get to talk to kids. The kids know they have one adult they can tell their problems to in school."

Clear feels that the students really enjoy the activities planned out for them and really get something out of the advisory groups, "One student told me that (the groups) are neat because she feels she has a second family at school."

According to Cleary, the advisors frequently hold group discussions where students air out their problems. "They can talk about anyone, whether they are having problems with a teacher or other students, but no names are allowed," Cleary said.

911 phone plan 'ahead of schedule'

In a May 13 report to the Conference of Western Wayne, Enhanced 911 Coordinator Joseph Benyo said the project "is ahead of schedule" and has progressed quickly and efficiently.

The coordinator credited the participation of the public safety representatives from the CWW communities with aiding in the speed of implementing the initial steps of the emergency telephone service program. He noted that attendance at the monthy E-911 meetings was "close to 100 percent."

Benyo said the E-911 Vendor Show which was staged at the Airport Hilton last month, was a success. The coordinator said most of the communities sent representives to view the available equipment and were "comfortable" with the information presented. Benyo said he will be available to advise and consult CWW communities in their selection of equipment.

In addition, Benyo said, an informational video program which explains the E-911 emergency system, will be produced for use by CWW members. Benyo said Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, who serves as CWW chairman, has offered the use of the city-operated cable station to film the video. Representatives from each of the 17 communities will be asked to film an introduction to the program to individualize the video for showing in their home communities, he said.

The coordinator said he has had cooperation from Washtenaw and Monroe counties in areas which overlap the CWW emergency telephone system.

Benyo asked all of the representatives to continue to update their master street guide, adding names and addresses when new subdivisions or apartment complexes are built and deleting names and addresses which are no longer current.

Local arts programs target of budget axe

The subject of mini-grants received maximum attention at the May 13 meeting of the Conference of Western Wayne.

Joseph Benyo of Westland reported that state grants for arts-related projects in Wayne County had been cut by one-third for the 1988-89 fiscal year – reducing the $90,000 available for mini-grants to $60,000.

Benyo said he attended a meeting of the Detroit Council of the Arts, the regranting agency for the state program, and was told that cuts had been made in the program because "no one cared" to answer a communication about the mini-grants which was sent to all Wayne County communities earlier in the year.

An informal survey of CWW represenatives revealed that none could recall receiving any information on the art grant programs.

Benyo asked the DCA to furnish him with a copy of the letter, but, at this time a copy of the letter has not been made available to him.

A few CWW representatives did note that they received notification of the most recent meeting of the DCA, but their notices arrived only one or two days prior to the meeting. Benyo, representing Westland Mayor Charles Griffin, was the only area representative at the meeting.

Adding additional concern to the CWW members was the report from Benyo that "currently 92 percent of the grant money is going to Detroit projects," leaving only eight percent of the county mini-grant allocation for the remaining communities. If the formula for distribution of mini-grants remains the same for the 1988-89 fiscal year, Detroit-based programs would receive $55,200 and only $4,800 would be allocated for the out-county area, he said.

Planning: Conference of Western Wayne outlines goals

Several new projects are under consideration for inclusion in the 1989 plans for the Conference of Western Wayne.

CWW Executive Director Ann Bollin presented the proposed program expansions to the 17-member organization at the May 13 meeting.

Bollin recommended that the CWW develop a liaison program with state legislators which would include biannual meetings with CWW legislative delegates to identify local concerns, advise legislators on the impact of proposed legislation and to determine potential joint initiatives. The proposed program also would include quarterly reports on legislation status and CWW concerns.

The CWW also proposed the development of an intern program that would identify potential intern positions within each community and recommend appropriate placements. The CWW, according to Bollin, would sponsor the interns for special projects within the conference and/or member communities. Plans call for the interns to rotate between the conference, a city and a township to allow the interns an opportunity to work within different governmental structures.

Bollin said the program would begin at Eastern Michigan University, but could be expanded to other colleges and universities. The interns would be recruited from the fields of public administration, business administration, personnel and labor relations and finance and planning, she said.

A third possible project, submitted by the CWW executive director, would be to contract with communities to gather data for use in upgrading property assessments and master plans. Bollin said the project "is dependent on interest generated by individual communities." Once potential interest is identified, she said, the CWW can proceed with a program outline.

The last proposal submitted by Bollin was the possibility of coordinating a Therapeutic Recreation Program. Currently, the city of Westland operates a program and a jointly operated program is operated by Garden City and Wayne. At one time the three communities operated a program together, Bollin noted.

Bollin said she has identifed three methods to administer a therapeutic recreation program through the CWW. She said the conference could set up a separate entity, contract with Westland (allowing total automony) or contract with Westland under CWW administration.

"I recommend alternative three, because it would allow for greater program visibility, offer an oppportunity to garner other resources, assist municipalities in their efforts to offer comprehensive programming by sharing costs and would reduce administrative costs," Bollin told the CWW members.

During the summer months, members of the CWW will study the proposals and make recommendations as to which programs would begin on Oct.1.

Townships receive a place on state maps

Canton, Sumpter and Van Buren townships may now be recognized on state of Michigan maps, thanks to legislation approved last week by members of the state House of Representatives.

Township officials across the state of Michigan have been unsuccessfully trying to be recognized by the Michigan Department of Transportation, which controls "putting the townships on the state map."

That all can change if state lawmakers approve an amendment to the 1988-89 Michigan Department of Transportation budget.

The amendment was recently introduced by Rep. James A. Kosteva (D-Canton Township).

If approved, townships such as Canton, Van Buren and Sumpter would find their spots on the Michigan highway map.

"That communities the size of Van Buren and Canton are ignored on the official state of Michigan highway map, while other communities with much smaller populations have designations. In my opinion, it is just not acceptable," Kosteva said.

According to Kosteva, his amendment for townships having a population of more than 15,000 will be included on the state highway map beginning with the 1990 edition. The designation for the community will be marked at a coordinate nearest to the municipality governing body office.

"Canton and Van Buren townships are rapidly growing," Kosteva said. "Visitors to western Wayne County, truckers delivering their products and any other motorist traveling the I-275 corridor should have an easier time locating communities of this size."

Other areas that will benefit from Kosteva's amendment would include Sumpter, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor townships.

The transportation budget bill was approved by the House of Representatives May 10. The bill is still awaiting consideration by the Senate. If the Senate approves, it will go to Gov. Blanchard for his approval and be forwarded to the Department of Transportation.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on May 26, 1988, at 5:00 p.m. at the Board Room at 36745 Marquette, Westland, Michigan 48185, (313) 595-2000, the Board of Education of the Wayne-Westland Community School District will hold a public hearing on the levying in 1988 of an additional proposed millage rate of 1.5381 mills for operating purpose pursuant to Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982.

The Board of Education has the complete authority to establish that 43.1266 mills be levied in 1988 from within its present authorized millage rate.

The maximum additional proposed millage rate would increase revenues for operating purposes from ad valorem property tax levies in 1988 otherwise permitted by Act 5, Public Acts of Michigan, 1982, by 3.70%.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive testimony and discuss the levy of an additional millage rate. Not less than seven (7) days following the public hearing, the Board of Education may approve all or any portion of the proposed additional millage rate.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education.

Grants

Benyo noted that there are numerous historical preservation groups, musicians and artists in western Wayne County who could benefit from the mini-grants if funding is available for area projects. He said the grants could be used in a wide variety of arts-related areas including exhibits, readings, performances, in-service activities, festivals, school programs, and the development of films and videos.

The state mini-grants are not to exceed one-half of the total project cost. The remaining portion of the project cost must be covered with cash or in-kind services or a combination of the two.

Benyo obtained guidelines and application forms for the member communities. Applications must be made prior to June 1, he said.

Government bodies plan joint meeting

Mutual concerns about solid waste, area marketiing and the Enhanced 911 emergency telephone service will be on the agenda when the Conference of Western Wayne and the Downriver Community conference meet on June 2.

CWW Executive Director Ann Bollin and DCC Director James Jones developed the meeting topics for the annual joint meeting. Bollin said that other items may be added to the agenda.

The meeting will be conducted at 5:30 p.m. June 2 at the DCC offices in Southgate.

Car accident stalls traffic

A one-car accident on Rawsonville Road west of Huron River Drive snarled traffic in the area for several hours Tuesday morning, according to Van Buren Township police.

About 8 a.m. May 17 the driver of the car apparently swerved off the road and the vehicle rolled on its side. Traffic was blocked to allow the Van Buren Fire Department to gain access to the accident scene and extricate the victim from the car.

Police officers are investigating the accident, and are not sure of the cause at this time.

The accident victim was flown to St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor for treatment. At noon Tuesday, it was reported that the accident victim was in the x-ray unit, but no condition report was available.

Plans finalized

Sumpter Township officials are finalizing plans for the annual Sumpter County Fest on July 29, 30 and 31.

The event is scheduled on the grounds of the Sumpter Community Center, across Sumpter Road from the township hall.

LASER LAPAROSCOPY MAY HELP A MAJOR CAUSE OF INFERTILITY— ENDOMETRIOSIS

By Kianoosh Radsan, M.D.

A new high-tech medical procedure is being used by gynecologists, who are trained in the technique, to treat endometriosis — a major cause of infertility problems in women. The new procedure is called LASER Laparoscopy.

Endometriosis has been wrongly labeled the "career woman's disease" because it has been linked to postponed childbearing. It appears now to be found in women even as early as the onset of menstruation, laying the groundwork for problems later on.

The disease takes its name from endometrium, the tissue that lines the uterus. This tissue swells each month in preparation for pregnancy. If fertilization does not occur, the endometrium breaks down and is sloughed off during menstruation.

In the disease endometriosis, fragments of the endometrium are found in other body organs including the ovaries, bowels, Fallopian tubes, and ligaments that support the uterus. They also may be found in the bladder, rectum, or appendix as well as more remote locations such as the lungs or nose.

Symptoms include pain during menstruation, intercourse, and bodily functions. Backaches and infertility are common signs as well. However, it's possible to have no symptoms whatsoever.

Girls who complain of severe pelvic pain may be endometriosis sufferers. Because the disease can become worse over time, young women should get treatment early to prevent irreversible damage to their reproductive systems.

Until recently, the treatments have been hormone therapies, major surgery requiring a large incision, or both.

LASER Laparoscopy is the newest treatment.

In LASER treatment, LASER energy is used through a laparoscope monitored by a sophisticated camera to treat endometriosis.

LASER Laparoscopy, in most cases, is effective and eliminates some of the shortcomings associated with traditional surgery because it is performed through two or three very small openings in the abdominal wall; it is usually performed as an outpatient procedure which reduces cost; and the patient is usually able to resume normal activity within one to two days, and to continue her job only after a brief interruption.

Opinion

Cuts in art budget were self-serving

If western Wayne County is labeled as ain't having no culture, the blame could be placed on the Michigan Council for the Arts and its county regranting agency, the Detroit Council for the Arts.

The MCA, which is responsible for awarding small grants to arts-related activities, has cut its annual allocation to Wayne County by 30 percent – the only county in Michigan to have received a cut in grant funds. Of the funds currently available to county residents, 92 percent have been allocated to Detroit-based activities. No doubt it is a sheer coincidence that the DCA serves as the area regranting agency.

A representative of the Conference of Western Wayne discovered the cutbacks and funding pattern when he attended a recent arts council meeting. The reason for the actions, he was told, was that "no one cared" to respond to a letter which the DCA claimed it sent to all of the area communities. A poll of CWW members, however, revealed that none of the members present could recall receiving a letter of inquiry about the mini-grant program sent earlier in the year. The CWW representative has asked for a copy of that letter, but so far, he has not received one.

Two CWW members said, however, that they received a notice of the arts council meeting two days prior to the event, while another said his announcement of the latest meeting came a day prior to it. Obviously, notification was not made in sufficient time for most community leaders to include the meeting on their already busy calendars.

For an area that prides itself in having an abundance of artists, craftsmen, historical societies and musical groups, we believe there should be a mini-grant allocation higher than the eight percent leftovers from the city of Detroit-based activities. If the pattern remains the same for 1988-89, this would mean $55,200 for Detroit mini-grants projects and $4,800 for the remainder of the art-related projects in Wayne County. It is difficult for us to believe that such a disproportionate number of cultural events are based in the city of Detroit to warrant the 92-8 percent division of the mini-grant funds.

The artists, musicians and historians of western Wayne County and the audiences and exhibit-viewers who profit from their efforts apparently are been short-changed.

Concern is positive

"Government of the people, by the people and for the people."

The concept is profound, although simple to understand. It is one that has proven effective time and again throughout the life of the nation.

More than 70 area citizens proved that Monday, as they used their power or public pressure to state their opinion on a local issue.

For this, these citizens are to be commended.

The citizens grabbed picket signs and a collection of facts and "stormed" the Westland City Council chambers to show their opposition to a plan that would transform 99 acres of the William P. Holliday Nature Preserve, in Westland, into a golf course. With shouts and signs of "Birdys Not Bogies," "Trees Not Tees" and "Ignorance and Greed Will Destroy our Preserve," the nature preserve enthusiasts made their presence known and tried to muster support for their effort.

The golf course plan was proposed earlier this year by Westland Mayor Charles Griffin. Griffin has named nine citizens in the area to a task force to study the feasibility of the plan. A report from the task force is still not final.

Opponents to the golf course plan say the fairways and greens would destroy the tranquility and untouched natural beauty of the nature preserve. Those who favor the golf course contend that using 99 of the total 500 acres which make up the preserve will not jeopardize the future of the preserve or the plants and wildlife living there.

Whatever the debate and whoever emerges as the victor in the controversy, the joining of public forces and citizen concern in this issue are essential to our democratic form of government and are needed in many more issues in this city and many others.

Citizen participation and concern about our communities are the backbone of this area. This concern begins with opinions on issues of controversy, continues with public support of local clubs, organizations and services and is most important during voting season and in the process of selecting candidates to serve in public office.

The citizens protesting a golf course in Westland have set a prime example of community spirit and involvement. Now, many others in the area need to follow the lead and take an active hand in promoting the betterment of their communities.

Togetherness is answer to clinic

I am writing this letter regarding the teen health care assessment study/survey/committee which has been operating in our community under the sponsorship of state funding. This committee and study is a cooperative effort between the Annapolis Hospital and the Wayne-Westland Community Schools to assess the health needs of our students.

I am concerned about some apparent deceptions involved with this study, survey/committee. A letter was sent to the parents of secondary students in our school district (if the committee is truly concerned only about the health needs of our students, elementary as well as secondary?) stating a study was being done in the school district and a random survey would be sent to some parents, some students and some staff members. (However, before this letter was sent, a survey was done in a secondary classroom without parental approval or permission.)

In this letter and also on the committee letterhead, the words clergy and Ministerial Association were used, indicating that a group of more than one minister is involved with this study, possible to indicate the acceptability of the study and the committee. In fact, to my knowledge, only one minister in this community is involved, and even though the committee letterhead indicates he represents the community ministerial association, he does not.

This association did not approve of or have any voice in his decision to serve on the committee.

We have been told by committee members that a school-based or school-affiliated teen health center/clinic is not part of the planning in the study. However, the guidance materials which the committee is using and from which most of the survey questions came are: complete report of guidance materials of adolescent health advisory committee, program requirements for teen health centers and program requirements for planning committee quite clearly state that a community survey must have been done in 24 months immediately prior to establishing a teen health center/clinic.

Also, much of the material that has been handed out at committee meetings is definitely pro teen health clinic information from the Center of Population Options.

I do not wish to condemn or criticize our school board or school officials. I work for the Wayne-Westland school district, and I have met many dedicated administrators, teachers and parents, who are all concerned with the welfare and education of our children. I am, however, suspicious of people outside our community who are and possibly will be funding the proposed clinic and wonder if this clinic will be controlled by people outside our school district, rather than locally.

I know that when many of our committed and dedicated parent volunteers have offered their services at the junior high level in the Wayne-Westland school district, they have not felt welcome and have been discouraged. I feel this is a mistake.

We should all work together to help our teenagers work through the very difficult years of adolescence. I sincerely believe we, as a community and as a school district, can come up with a much better and more acceptable program than the proposed teen health clinic.

Resident opposes golf course plan

I strongly disagree with Westland Mayor Charles Griffin's proposal for a golf course in the Holliday nature preserve. I feel he should reconsider, using more foresight.

Look around and see all the development that is springing up all over Westland. I think back 32 years ago when we first moved here. Our parents ask, "Why do you want to live way out in the country?"

Now, everything has been bulldozed down on three sides of us. Our large wooded back yard that we have kept natural all these years is changed in many ways. We no longer have any families of pheasants or quail. We miss the spring peepers. And, probably most of all, I miss the carpets of wildflowers – especially the trillium, marsh marigolds and May apples.

We did nothing to disturb all these, but the development around us destroyed them.

We do not want this to happen to the Holliday nature preserve. But it will happen if the golf course is put in. Mayor Griffin says he will only be taking 99 acres, but the western 45 acres that will be separated by the golf course from the eastern 350 acres will be almost worthless as a wildlife preserve.

The east portion will also be greatly diminished in value, since many plants and animals will be destroyed when neighboring trees are cut down, wetlands are filled and pesticides and fertilizers filter down and pollute the creek.

We can replace a golf course anytime. But we can never replace a wildlife preserve.

Romulus losing streak ends

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Streaks, they say, are made to be broken. And the incredulous 16-game losing streak put together by Romulus High finally was finally broken last week.

Behind the three-hit pitching of Keith Brothers, Romulus turned back Dearborn Heights Robichaud 6-2 in the first round of the city tournament hosted by Annapolis to put an abrupt end to one of the longest losing streaks in the history of the school.

"We waited a long time for this one," said an elated Romulus Coach Dennis Stoh, "and believe me we enjoyed it. In fact, we won four of the six games we played last week, including our first conference game."

The Eagles split a doubleheader with Ann Arbor Huron, losing the opener 7-4, but coming back and winning the second game, 5-3, thanks to a three-run-last-of-the-seventh rally.

The victory was Romulus's first in the South Central Conference and the decision went to right-hander Sean Shelby, a junior who struck out two, didn't walk any, and gave up five hits.

Trailing 3-2 in the last inning, the Eagles put the decisive runs on the scoreboard thanks to a three-run homer by Ken Blevins, who got his third round-tripper with one-away. Glenn Beach started the rally with a single, moved to second on Lenny Barr's botched grounder. Then, after one was out, Blevins came up and put the game away.

In the opener the Eagles blew a four-run, second-inning lead as they strung together five consecutive hits. Brothers took the loss. He had 12 strikeouts while winner Steve Lang gave up 10 hits, with DH Jeff George collecting three of them. Darryl Fisher had two hits for the losers.

Let's return to the Annapolis tournament. Brothers helped his own cause with three hits - all singles. He also chipped in three RBIs.

But the Eagle celebration was short-lived. Annapolis stopped them 14-6 in the championship round to snatch the title away from Stoh's club. Fisher took the loss.

"We just ran out of pitchers," commented Stoh whose team trailed 9-0 at one time.

Romulus split with New Boston Huron as the Eagles won the opener 11-8 thanks to Steve Hoinka's bat. Hoinka got to losing pitcher Joe Debozy for four hits, including a double. Eddie King checked in with three hits, also lacing a double.

New Boston got homers from McLeod, Emery and Cruz.

Supported by two hits each from Marty Lawler, Hoinka, Brothers, King and Blevins, Romulus stopped Fordson 7-4 earlier in the week.

The Eagles have a busy week ahead of them as the 1988 baseball season nears the predistrict and district stage of the year. In fact, Stoh and the Eagles played their qualifying round Monday, hosting a strong Milford club for their first tournament test.

Stoh pointed out that Milford has a fine baseball tradition but hopes that the recent momentum his team has built up will carry it pass their first playoff rival.

On Tuesday, the Eagles resumed South Central Conference competition against Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Romulus will return home on Thursday to host out-of-conference rival Milan. They took a 4-18 overall record into the week of competition.

"We have been improved our defense and our hitting continues to impress," Stoh said.

Brooks one-hits Fordson

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville's sensation senior hurler, Brenda Brooks, flirted with a non-hitter last week and had to settle for a 7-0 shutout over Dearborn Fordson.

Brooks struck out 11, didn't walk any, and allowed only one hit as the Tigers chalked up their eighth victory in 10 Wolverine 'A' Conference softball starts.

"She (Brooks) was on target all of the way," said Belleville Coach Peggy Curtis. "And when you consider that she strikes outs almost half of the batters she faces, it's just phenomenal."

Brooks's personal record is 11-4 on the season and she'll be leading the Tigers into the playoffs next week.

While Brooks was gathering goose eggs, her teammates staked her to a four-run third inning, then added a pair of runs in the fourth and scored their final tally in the sixth. Becky Fitch helped the Tiger cause with two hits, including a two-run homer into right-centerfield. She also doubled. Teammate Diane Wisniewski, a senior whose sister helped the Tigers capture a Class A state championship in the late 1970's, chipped in with two singles.

Brook's bid for a no-hitter was ruined by Barb Kalfan in the fifth inning. Kalfan drilled a single up-the-middle and was the only Fordson batter to reach base.

Trenton slowed the Tiger title express last week by splitting a pair with Curtis's club. Belleville dropped the opener 4-2 to the Trojans but recovered in time to salvage the second game 6-4.

Again it was Brooks who got the assignment for the mound. She twirled a four-hitter in the loss, striking out three and also issuing three walks. Winner Lisa Chaffin gave up five hits, including a pair apiece to Kathy Murphy and Christy Garrett.

> I don't know if it's a hex or the jinx of some kind, but we have never won a softball game over there at Monroe.
> — Coach Peg Curtis

Chaffin also notched two strikeouts and walked two. The Trojans sealed the victory with a pair of runs in the sixth, then came back with a run in the seventh.

Belleville needed a seventh inning rally to overcome Trenton in the nightcap. Tied at four-all, the Tigers broke the game open in the seventh.

Catcher Lisa Bishop collected three hits off of Chaffin who also went the distance in the second game. Bishop had a triple in the fifth with two-away and scored on an error. Garret drove in a pair of Tiger runs thanks to a single and a triple.

Monroe continued its home field jinx as it turned back Belleville 5-4. Belleville blew a 4-3 lead in the bottom of the seventh when Monroe scored the tying and winning runs off loser, Brooks, with two away.

"We have never won a game over there (Monroe)," said Curtis. "I really don't know what it is, but it must be some hex or jinx they have on us over there."

Monroe collected seven hits off of Brooks who struck out four and walked one. Lynn Ros-

Tigers take on spoiler's role

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Knocked out of the Wolverine 'A' Conference baseball title race by Monroe last week, Belleville will take on the role of "spoilers" as the Tigers head into the final playoff phase of the 1988 season.

Coach John Bertz and the Tigers have games with league frontrunners Southgate Anderson and Wayne Memorial this week. Wayne and Southgate are deadlocked in first place after the two rivals split last week. Each has 8-2 conference records.

The Tigers came into the week with a 4-5 conference record after last-place Monroe upset them, 9-5, last week. Belleville whipped Trenton 13-7 earlier in the week thanks to a grand slam homer by Jerry Bitner who teed off of losing pitcher Greg Kostrzeva in the fourth inning.

Bitner finished with six runs batted in to help starting pitcher Michael Coleman earn the victory. Coleman gave up 10 hits, walked four and struck out one.

Monroe rallied for four runs in the seventh to jolt the Tigers 9-5 and handing starting pitcher Bill Ashley the unexpected setback. Ashley tried to pitch over five Tiger errors as he fanned eight, walked six in throwing a nine-hitter.

The Belleville hurler also hammered a solo homer in the opening inning off of winning pitcher Jon Carver.

The Tigers lost a 1-0 lead in the second when the Trojans tilted the scoreboard for a pair of runs. But Belleville tied it up in the third at two-all and, after Monroe scored single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth, the Tigers refused to quit and again deadlocked the score at five-all.

The Trojans settled the issue in the top of the seventh with their four-run surge.

Belleville's Rod Schellenberger and Blaine Armstrong split four of the nine Tiger hits, including a pair of doubles.

On Saturday, the Tigers swept a doubleheader from out of conference rival, Ann Arbor Huron. They won the nightcap 4-2 behind Bitner's three-hit pitching and a Coleman homer and came away the winner in the opener 10-0 as Phil Feist pitched a three-hitter, struck out three and didn't allow a runner to reach base on balls. The junior righthander remains undefeated in four trips to the mound this season.

Armstrong blasted a two-run fourth inning homer while Bitner's contribution was a pair of hits including two RBIs.

In the second game, Bertz used five sophomores and one of them, brad Boyd, collected a double and a single.

Against Trenton, Ashley reached base four times, twice via walks and he also connected for a triple and single. Coleman helped his own cause with three hits - all singles.

Belleville won't see playoff action until May 27, in the meantime they await Wayne Memorial, a team that will be in Belleville on Thursday.

"I thought we gave the Monroe game away," Bertz said. "It was the first time this season that our defense didn't do the job we know it can do."

"And I hope that is all behind us as the playoffs begin," he added. "As we all realize, in state tournaments, it's one loss and you're out."

Ashley signs with Hurons

Bill Ashley, one of the finest athletes to ever wear a Belleville High baseball uniform, will be heading for Eastern Michigan University this fall.

Ashley, a 6-7, 220-pound pitcher-outfielder, on Saturday signed a national letter of intent to enroll this fall at EMU.

Ashley is ending an outstanding career at Belleville. This season he has hammered seven homers and is batting .625 going into the final week of conference competition. A right-hander, he has a 3-3 pitching record.

"I am confident he (Ashley) will be an asset to the EMU program," said Belleville Coach John Bertz. "This young man has tremendous potential, and I believe they will be using him more in the outfield than on the mound."

Eagles are zeroing in on championship

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

This is the week that will decide whether Romulus High and Coach Bill Cuhran will win the 1988 South Central Conference's softball title.

The Eagles go into the week riding the crest of s seven-game winning streak and in first place in the SCC. However, they face two strong challengers for that title in Ann Arbor Pioneer and Ann Arbor Huron.

"No denying it, it is a crucial week for us," Cuhran said. "We got to beat them if we want the title." The Eagles are to meet Huron Friday on the home field. (They played Pioneer Tuesday, weather permitting).

In the meantime, Romulus continued to impress out-of-conference rivals as the Eagles destroyed Dearborn Edsel Ford 10-3 and swept a twin bill from New Boston Huron 9-6 and 14-7.

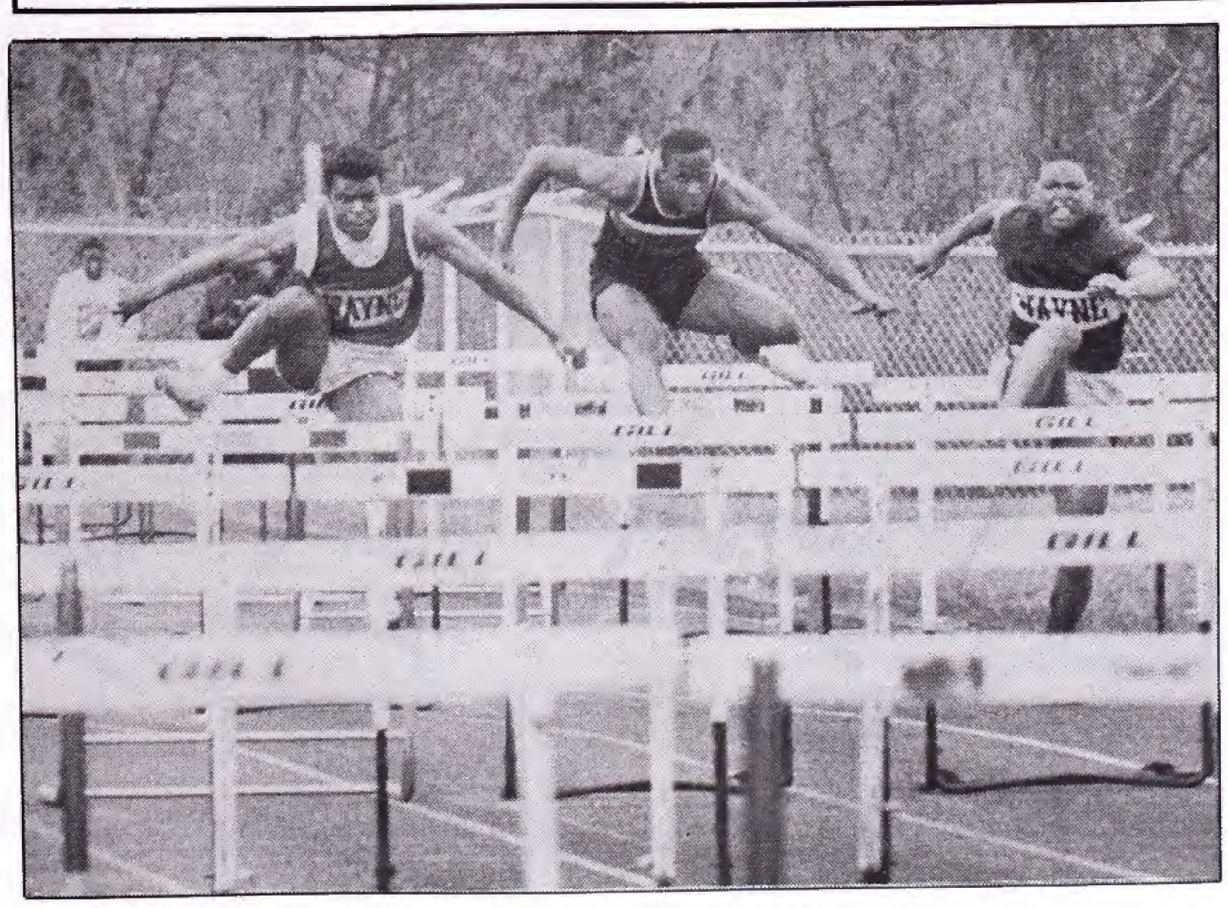
Cuhran used a freshman hurler, Jennifer Daniel, against the T-Birds of Edsel Ford and she tossed a one-hitter, struck out five and walked seven. Daniel has piled up a 9-2 personal won-lost record on the season.

Kim Lyles had a perfect day at the plate for the Eagles as she drilled three hits, including a triple, and drove in four runs. Teammate Michele Scarrow chipped in with two hits in three trips to the plate and also had two RBIs. Lisa McClure and Lori Berlinn each had two hits.

The Eagles needed a late-inning rally to subdue a stubborn New Boston Huron as Lyles' four for four triggered the offense. Daniel and McClure also had excellent afternoons at the plate as each finished with three hits.

Liz Ward, who struck out two, walked four and yielded six hits, was the winning pitcher.

The Eagles swept the nightcap with Daniel on the mound. She received ample hitting support from Scarrow who came away with a perfect four-for-four.



Returning to winning form

Courtney Washington(second from left) couldn't hit his stride against Wayne Memorial last week, but the Belleville hurdler came back and swept both the high and the low hurdles to lead the Tigers to a lopsided victory over Wyandotte. Area high school runners will compete in regional competition Saturday in hopes of qualifying for the state championships. The story is on page B-3. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

Robichaud fails to derail Parkers

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Robichaud runners failed to derail undefeated Oak Park's title express last Thursday, and the Redskins' 77-52 dual meet track victory gives them a green light to the Suburban Athletic Conference meet and the 1988 championship.

"They (Oak Park) definitely are in the driver's seat at this time," noted Robichaud Coach Jeff Flounory whose club record dipped to an even .500 (3-3) in the conference. "It going to be difficult for any of us to stop them from winning it now."

Flounory and his Bulldogs were hoping that they could at least slow down the Oak Park title express, but the Redskins were prepared. In fact, they inflicted the first setback in Robichaud miler Eugene O'Neil's SAC career.

O'Neil has been undefeated in the mile for the past two seasons until he ran up against Darryl Dates Thursday afternoon. The two battled it out to the finish but it was Dates who crossed the line first with a 4:50.8 effort. O'Neil was a close second at 4:51.0.

"Things happened, like in the mile, that we just didn't expect happen. And the bottom line is that they won this key meet," Flounory said.

The Bulldogs did wind up with six of the 16 first places.

James Gee continued to dominate the hurdles, winning the 110-highs in 16.0, while claiming victory in the 300-intermediate in 40.5. Teammate Tyrone Wheatley remains a track power to contend with as he captured the 100-meters in 11.1, then picked up a victory in the long jump with a leap of 21 feet, 10 inches.

O'Neil came back from his heartbreaking loss in the mile to claim a first in the half-mile with a strong 2:14 finish.

Rodney James contributed the discus event with a toss of

New Boston Huron makes it 7 straight

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Overpowering Airport and Riverview last week, New Boston Huron girls' track & field team chalked up its sixth and seventh dual meet victories of the 1988 conference campaign.

And that set a showdown last night with also undefeated Flat Rock, the only conference team to mar Coach Jeff Okler's conference record a year ago. The two teams dueled to a tie a year ago. And Okler sees another cliffhanger with their arch rivals.

"I would say we are evenly matched again," he said going into the contest last night. "We appear to have the edge in the distances, however, they dominate the sprints. It should be one interesting meet to watch."

Huron swept 13 out of a possible 16 first places against Airport as the Chiefs claimed a 96-32 victory over their rivals. Kim Scalici accounted for two of those 13 as she won the high jump and the half-mile events. Teammate Marcy Hall was the best in the shot put while Crystal Tomey finished first in the discus.

> We are kind of even. I think we have the edge in the distance events, while they (Flat Rock) appear to be better in the sprints. It should prove to be an interesting meet.
> — Coach Jeff Okler

Huron stashed the long jump event in its win column thanks to Corry Simpson and Okler's 2-mile relay team of Pam Hughes, Lanni Gubbini, Carrie Madej, and Scalici combined for a victory. The Chiefs swept the first three places in the high hurdles as double winner Jennifer Gracia led teammates Chris Ragsdale and Christie Cady across the finish line in the highs with a 17.1. She took the low hurdles as well.

Okler's winning 440-relay lineup included Brandy Mink, Patti Prentice, Gracia and LeAnn Ziegler. Madej was the victor in the mile.

Tracie Nagy also posted a double victory as she breezed to wins in the quarter-mile and the 200-meter dash. Lindsay Wendell crossed the finish line first for the 2-mile run.

Huron also received little opposition from Riverview, a team that the Chiefs subdued 91-37.

The Chiefs will join some 20 other area high school teams to compete in the Class B regional scheduled Saturday at Monroe Jefferson. Although Huron isn't expected to be among the top finishers, Okler believes he will have several athletes who will qualify for the state finals.

"It's a tough regional," Okler said, "and Rouge is one of the teams favored to compete for the title.

Hadley's netters are a 'perfect 10'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Robichaud High tennis coach Jim Hadley has produced some excellent tennis players and teams.

But the veteran coach believes his 1988 edition is "the best".

And the Bulldogs continue to prove it as they coasted to their 10th consecutive victory and are sporting an impeccable 5-0 record in the Suburban Athletic Conference.

"I would have to say that this is my best team, especially in terms of depth," Hadley said, who has been coaching the sport at Robichaud for the past 18 seasons. When it come to durability, only former Cherry Hill coach Mike Hairabedian, who took over at Wayne Memorial when the two school districts merged, has been around the prep tennis courts longer. Hairabedian has coached prep tennis for at least three decades.

> I would have to say that this is my best team especially in terms of team depth.
> — Coach Jim Hadley

Robichaud owns the last four SAC titles and is well on its way to its fifth conference championship. The Bulldogs blanked once highly-respected Oak Park in its last outing, 7-0. And almost managed to accomplish the feat without losing a single game.

Mike Petras has been carrying the weight in the number one singles where he has amassed a 7-3 overall record. Number two singles, Rick Mooscrof has compiled an 8-2 mark, while number three stick, Rick Babeth is 8-1 on the year. Frank Hayes, the Bulldogs' number four player, has won 11 of his 12 matches this season.

In the meantime, the Bulldogs' doubles entries have also contributed to the success of this team. When Hadley teams Charles Orsetti with Jay Wright, the two have come away with a perfect 4-0 record; Tony Lario and Ken Donega have a 10-1 overall record while Dave Pace and Robert Stewart are 2-0, however, the Bulldogs' number three singles have a 10-1 overall record.

Robichaud will return to Oak Park Wednesday, May 25 to defend their SAC title. Barring any unforeseeable mishap, the Bulldogs should come away with their fifth title.

Belleville breezes past Wyandotte

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Coach Dave Medley "moved some people around" for the Wolverine 'A' Conference track meet with Wyandotte last Thursday, and that move apparently was just what the Tigers needed "to get moving."

Coming off of a disastrous day at Wayne Memorial, Belleville humbled Wyandotte 117-17 as the Tigers took all 16 first places.

"The kids came back from the loss at Wayne and looked respectable," said Medley who stressed that Wyandotte is rebuilding "and really didn't show much. However, I expect more in the way of competition when we meet Lincoln Park."

Lincoln Park is scheduled to be in town at 4 p.m. on Thursday and the meet is a tuneup for Saturday's Class A regional championships.

Against Wyandotte, Courtney Washington turned in with a "triplicate" as he won the long jump (18 feet, 6), then swept the 120-high (16.3) and 330-low hurdles (42.0) events. Washington also was in the Tigers' winning mile relay team which also consisted off Garrett Clark, Virgil Chandler, and Al Tilman who were clocked in 3:39.0.

Clark came up with a pair of individual wins in the sprints. He was clocked in 10.9 and 51.8 in winning the 100 and 440-yard events, respectively. With Chandler, Mike Gentry, Tilman and Clark, the Tigers also had the winning half-mile relay entry.

Belleville half-miler Brian Koch finished in the winning time of 2:02, and Brian Gulliver's toss of 134 feet, 3 inches was the best effort for the discus. John Barledge won the shot put event with a toss of 42 feet, 9 inches.

Tyson, Hampton set pace in Tigers' track victory

Belleville girls continue to look impressive in track & field as the Tigers dominated their meet with Wyandotte. Claiming 13 of 16 first places, Coach Michael Garland's club earned an 83-44 victory over the Bears.

"If we continue to show improvement we should be very respectable at the league championships," said Garland. The league title will be decided on Tuesday, May 24 at Monroe.

However, the Tigers have two key engagements prior to the Wolverine 'A' Conference championships. They are scheduled to take on Lincoln Park on Thursday and will compete for regional honors on Saturday.

Belleville's Carol Tyson had an excellent afternoon against Wyandotte as she was clocked with an impressive 11.8 in winning the 100-yard dash. She also won the long jump competition with a leap of 14 feet, 8 inches.

Tyson teamed with Vetra Chandler, Tiffany Eaton, and Kesha Pogue for a 53.3 in winning the 440-yard relay. In the 880-relay, Parent, Pogue, Tyson and Rosemary Hampton combined for a 1:52.3. The Tigers also won the mile relay in 4:22.6 thanks to the efforts of Mitzie Herkimer, Laura Alberts, Becky Vitale and Pogue.

Hampton, only a freshman, also accounted for Tiger victories in the high jump (5 feet) and the half-mile (1:03.1), while Valentine Stumpf, also a freshman, turned in a 5:33.0 in winning the mile event.

Erika Dempsey contributed two firsts, putting the shot put (32 feet, 3) and the discus (74 feet, 5) in the Tiger winning column. Pogue came back to win the high hurdles (17.1) and Vitale was first in the 220 (30.5). Ann Courtney also appeared in the winning circle thanks to her 13:11.6 performance in the 2-mile run.

125 feet, 6 inches. Flounory's 2-mile relay team remains the team to beat in the SAC as O'Neil, Matt White, Lenell Brooks and John Studstill were clocked in the winning time of 9:06.0.

Robichaud also tuned up for the Class B regional qualifier and championships with an impressive showing at the inaugural Eastern Michigan University Invitational. (EMU has traditionally hosted the Huron Relays, an indoor meet that usually kicks off the prep track & field season).

Wheatley raised some eyebrows at EMU when the 16-year-old freshman won the long jump competition with a leap of 21 feet 3 1/4 inches. He also finished with a silver medal when he allowed only one other sprinter to cross the finish line before him in the 100-meter dash. He was clocked in 10.74 and that translates to 9.8 for the 100-yards which means he's really pumping his legs.

"I have said it before and will reiterate," Flounory added. "This young athlete has the potential to be one of the greatest this school has ever produced."

Gee also picked up a fourth place medal in the hurdles with a 40.3 effort.

Flounory was pleased with his team's overall performance at the invitation. "We came back from a defeat at Oak Park and managed to lower our times, and that came after back-to-back meets."

si was the winner. She pitched a nine-hitter, struck out two and walked three.

Belleville is on the diamond today at Wyandotte where the Tigers will need a victory if they have any designs on the Class A district title. The winner will advance to the district playoffs scheduled for a week from Saturday.

In the meantime, the Tigers are in a do-or-die situation in the Wolverine 'A'. They can't afford to lose another game and realistically come up with the title.

THE WEEK OF May 22 to 28 has been dubbed Michigan Golf Week by the Michigan Association of Public Golf Courses. The celebration is part of an outreach effort by the golf association to encourage participation in the sport.

MICHIGAN CANOEING WEEK week has been set June 1 to 7. State lawmakers have approved a resolution in honor of the week.

THE EIGHTH ANNUAL Canton "Scrambles" Golf Tournament will be staged at 11 a.m. Sunday, June 19 at Fellows Creek Golf Course. Three-person teams are required for play. The tournament is open to all. Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishing teams, as well as longest drive and closest-to-the-pin contests. Cost will be $54 per team. For more information, call 397-5110.

SEVERAL FITNESS CLASSES will be offered at Schoolcraft College during the spring. Classes include: swim and trim, an eight-week course covering both floor and pool exercises, as well as nutition. The class began yesterday and continues from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. It is not too late to join. Cost is $34; women's conditioning is an all-around conditioning course offering structured exercises and free-time activities in a modern physical education complex. This is offered for eight weeks and begins today. Each class meets from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. every Wednesday. Cost will be $34.

WRESTLERAMA '88 will be staged at 2 p.m. this Saturday at the Canfield Ice Arena, one block west of Beech Daly and one block south of Ford Road, Dearborn Heights. Presented in a super tag match will be The Fabulous Kangaroos versus The Flying Tigers. The mid-American title match will feature Bobo Brazil versus Big Jim Lancaster. In a tag team match, the Sensationals will take on Lancaster and Hawkins. Ringside tickets will be $10, general admission will be $6. Tickets are available at K-Ann Jewelery, 25912 Ford Road, Dearborn Heights, and Old Mill Party Store, 4503 S. Telegraph, Dearborn Heights. For more information, call 278-3679 or 561-1366.

"RUN FOR FREEDOM," a Memorial Day race, will be staged Sunday, May 29 at the Livonia YMCA, 14255 Stark Road. Races will include a one-, three- and five-mile run. Cost for the one-mile run will be $6 and $8 for the three- and five-mile races. Call 261-2161 for more information.

THERE'S A WAY to trade $175 of golf value for only $20, made possible by the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan. The 1988 Golf Privilege Card guarantees 23 free rounds of golf at some of the finest courses in the state. For more information about the card, call 559-5100.

JACKI SORENSEN AEROBIC Dancing is offering $5 off regular price for new dance students for classes scheduled to begin May 23. The sessions will be staged at 4:45 p.m. Monday and Wednesday at the Bailey Recreation Center, Westland. For more information, call 459-3263.

THE THIRD ANNUAL Michigan Multiple Sclerosis 150 Bike Tour will be staged Saturday, June 11 and Sunday, June 12. The two-day, one-way tour will include scenic routes through Michigan countryside to benefit the Michigan chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. The tour includes all meals, lodging, rest stops, entertainment, support vehicles, bicycle repairs and return trips back to the home base. All cyclists are eligible for prizes. For more information, call 1-800-247-7382.

"A WISH A Mile Ride to Mackinac," a walk to Michigan cities with proceeds going to the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan, is scheduled for Saturday, May 28 through Monday, May 30. On Saturday, walkers will travel from Ypsilanti to Bay City. On Sunday, they will proceed from Bay City to Fairview. On Monday, walkers will travel from Fairview to Mackinac. On the last lap, participants will walk from Mackinac City across the Mackinac Bridge. For more information, call 484-1467.

THE CANTON PARKS and Recreation Department annual ballet tap recital will be staged May 20 and 21 at the Plymouth Salem Auditorium. Rehearsals will be from 2:30 to 10:30 p.m. through tomorrow at the auditorium. The recitals will be staged from 6 to 9 p.m. For more information, call 397-5110.

THE MICHIGAN FLY Fishing Club annual one-day Fly Fishing School will be offered June 11 and 12, at the Waterloo Recreation Area Mill Lake, near Chelsea, west of Ann Arbor. Cost will be $35 per person. The program will consist of three segments: fly casting, fly tying and equipment, knots and stream etiquette. Each section will feature experienced anglers as instructors. All necessary fishing equipment, supplies and lunch are included in the fee. For more information, call 388-5889 and ask for Paula.

Plan to save Rouge developed by board

By BARBARA ALBERT
ANP Staff Writer

The 20-year plan to clean up the Rouge River basin may not totally alleviate the problems. But it is a good start.

Jim Rogers, senior environmental planner for Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, said the plan is feasible and is the best they can do right now.

Developers of the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan unveiled the 20-year program at a press conference May 11.

The plan was the result of two years of work prompted by the Water Resources Commission.

The WRC vowed to restore the Rouge River by the year 2005 "to the extent practicable." Rogers said the term "practicable" will make the vow achievable through the 20-year plan, but a complete cleanup will take much longer.

"Our ultimate goal in the case of the Rouge River will take much longer than the 20 years outlined in this plan," Rogers said.

He added that this plan, however, will make it progressively easier to clean up the river.

The primary goal of SEMCOG is to protect the public health by eliminating discharges of untreated sewage and the control of toxic substances to the Rouge River. The group hopes someday to achieve the water quality standards set by the state. That, however, is beyond the reach of the 20-year plan.

Separate sanitary sewer overflows and combined sewer overflows have been named as the main culprits in the devastation of the Rouge during the years, according to Rogers. These inadequate systems have resulted in the flow of raw sewage and toxic substances in the river, as well as the destruction of many of the fish and plant life that once flourished there.

The major portion of RAP involves the design and construction of new combined sewer overflow facilities after completing improvements to separate sanitary sewers.

SEMCOG will have to rely on individual communities for much of this work. Communities will be asked to design and build facilities to disinfect the overflows that are now being dumped into the river as raw sewage.

Rogers said in this way the support of area communities is crucial to the project.

The total cost of the 20-year plan is estimated at $900 million. The RAP recommends that 40 percent of the cost be obtained through state and federal grants. The rest will have to be the burden of the 36 communities which lie in the river basin.

Rogers said most of the communities have already pledged their support, including, Canton, Westland, Wayne, Belleville, Van Buren and Inkster. There are a couple, however, which he said still refuse to participate.

"Participation could have been imposed by the state two years ago," Rogers said. Instead, he said, SEMCOG chose to evaluate the problem and come up with a long-term solution to the problem of pollution in the Rouge River.

While RAP is the heavy-duty, nuts-and-bolts of the cleanup effort, the annual Rouge Rescue event is the heart.

Rogers admitted it would be naive to think that the problems in the Rouge River could be solved by cleaning up the trash once a year. He said, however, that the Rouge Rescue is an essential part of the cleanup effort.

Rogers said the annual event gives neighbors the chance to participate personally in the cleanup effort.

"They (residents of area communities) are going to have to sign on the dotted line for the sewer project," he said. "This (Rouge Rescue) gives them a chance to feel a part of the effort."

Rogers and other SEMCOG officials will begin meeting soon with community leaders to disscuss the types of facilities needed to clean up the river and to get their reaction on RAP.

The plan will go into effect right away, but it may be awhile before results are noticeable.

Local students to help in 1988 rescue

One would think that cleaning nearly 54,000 gallons of garbage from the Rouge River would do the job. But much more cleanup is needed.

June 4 will mark the third annual Rouge Rescue cleanup project sponsored by Friends of the Rouge.

In an effort to clean up the 126-mile long river, young people, old people, students and community leaders have joined forces. Last year, more than 2,000 volunteers rolled up their sleeves and braved the murky waters of the Rouge.

All sorts of goodies were pulled from the water, including 19 cars, four refrigerators, 75 grocery carts, two motorcycles, 150 tires, two couches and three-quarters of a ton of roofing shingles.

Diana Haskins, a junior at Wayne Memorial High School, is looking forward to digging some trash out of the river herself this year.

She is one of hundreds of high school students who use the cleanup project as an opportunity to learn more about the river and to help out with a worthwhile project.

"Right now, we're experimenting with samples from the river," Haskins said.

Students will learn a great deal from the river, according to William Jakeway, executive director of Friends of the Rouge.

Student groups will study the various pollutants which are causing problems with the river running through 36 communities in Wayne, Oakland and Washtenaw counties.

Haskins, along with many of the other students involved in the cleanup, is interested in conservation efforts and would like to pursue a career in the field of natural resources.

The annual cleanup effort is an integral part of the long-term cleanup of the river, according to Jim Rogers, senior environmental planner for Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"It (the cleanup) provides a way for the public to get involved," he said. "It helps establish a greater understanding of the resources in their own back yard."

The Friends of the Rouge are in need of equipment, money and, most importantly, muscle, to help with the June 4 cleanup. For information on how to help, call 42-ROUGE.

Trouble shooters

Romulus High School seniors Scott Sampson (left) and Scott Kilgore participated in the Plymouth-AAA Michigan Trouble Shooting Contest finals at the Henry Ford Community College, in Dearborn, May 5. The two were among the 10 finalist teams who scored highest on a written test from students at 42 schools statewide and competed in the final hands-on competition. The state competition was won by two Warren students, who will represent the state in the national event June 20 in Washington, D.C. Special photo to ANP

WINNERS CIRCLE

BY LAURIE KIPP

Surprisingly, many people don't realize that Michigan Lottery revenues help the state's public schools. The following addresses that issue.

Q: What happens to Lottery revenues?

A: Since 1981, revenues from all Michigan Lottery games have been earmarked for the state School Aid Fund to help support kindergarten-12th grade education.

Q: How much does the Lottery contribute?

A: To date, the Lottery has provided approximately $2.9 billion to the state! In the last fiscal year, the Lottery's contribution exceeded $407 million.

Q: Why haven't my taxes gone down as a result of the Lottery contribution?

A: The annual state budget for support of elementary and secondary education is continually increasing. So, while your taxes may not have decreased, maintaining the same level of education funding without Lottery revenues during the past two years alone would have cost the average Michigan household another $250 more in the form of direct taxes.

Q: Does the Lottery provide this money to the individual schools?

A: No. Lottery revenues are turned over to the Michigan Department of Education for distribution to individual school districts according to terms of the School Aid Formula developed by the legislature. Thus, the Lottery has no control over, or exact knowledge of, how its contribution might figure in allocations to individual school districts.

Q: On what does the Department of Education base its allocation of these dollars?

A: According to the department, allocation of the School Aid Fund is based on local support for education. School districts which have a high local tax base are considered to be "out of formula" and receive a lesser share of funding than districts with lower tax bases. So aid per pupil and per school varies throughout the state.

Q: Who should I contact if I want more information on my school's share of the fund?

A: For more information on your area, you can contact your local school board office or write to the Michigan State Board of Education, 608 W. Allegan, P.O. Box 30008, Lansing, MI 48909.

For submitting the question leading to this column, 50 tickets for the current instant game, "Cash Explosion," have been set to Dorothy Culi of East Tawas.

If you have a question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

4-H: Youth organization tries to shed the image of catering only to cows, crafts and kids

Life on a farm doesn't leave off at home for Tiffani Rae. Rae helps coordinate the 4-H programs in Wayne County for Michigan State University and the Wayne County Cooperative Education Extension Center. The center – complete with a barn and windmill – is located on Venoy Road, at Van Born, in Wayne. ANP photos by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

For years, they have been associated with life on a farm. They are pictured raising chickens, goats, cows and swine.

Membership in the group was seemingly restricted to those whose knowledge of Holsteins and brown swift dairy cows distinguish them from "city slickers" who knew only terms such as "veal," "prime rib" and "filet mignon."

But members of the 4-H organization are concerned with much more than cows, crafts and country life.

Today, more than 25,000 people in Wayne County are "card carrying" members of 4-H. Of those, 1,100 are older than 18 years old are included in the ranks of leaders for the organization.

The beginnings of 4-H can be traced to pre-World War II days. It was then that an effort began to encourage Americans to use all arable soil to grow crops for soldiers in the war effort.

After the war ended, members of the effort organized to become sources for various educational topics, such as gardening and preserving food.

The 4-H received a major boost in the 1950s and 1960s from private businesses which funded the organization and again in 1977 when Michigan lawmakers appropriated funding for the expansion of 4-H programming through the state Department of Social Services.

Now, 4-H programs are coordinated and monitored by Michigan State University. MSU is the land grant institution, meaning the institution is responsible for educating members of the general public who are unable to obtain information in a college atmosphere.

In Wayne County, that education is conducted as part of the Wayne County Cooperative Education Extension Center, located on Venoy Road, at Van Born, in Wayne.

It is there that the fun begins for local 4-H members and leaders.

"It's an educational youth program," said Margaret Leskosky, describing simply the design of 4-H.

Leskosky is the Wayne County Extension 4-H youth agent. She is paid by MSU to help organize and develop the programs for the 90 Wayne County 4-H clubs, which meet as often as once each week or as seldom as once each month.

Each club in 4-H, Leskosky said, focuses on one or more of the 200 "projects" designated in the 4-H program. The projects can include the study or work in crafts, computers, gardening, science, raising small animals, dogs, horses, cooking, nutrition, personal appearance, stress, outdoor survival – and a long list of others.

"The kids in each club decide the types of things they want to do in each club," Leskosky said. "They really could incorporate all 200 projects in one club."

A demographic profile of local 4-H members reveals a wide range of interests – and ages, Leskosky said. Ages of members range from a 3 1/2-year old in Leskosky's club to Keith Forbush, of Inkster, who has been a member for 42 years.

As a rule, however, 4-H members are between the ages of 5 and 19. After age 19, members are eligible to become club leaders, a position which they can maintain indefinitely.

"After age 19, members are considered in a

The barn at the Wayne County Cooperative Education Extension is also used for a pet-a-farm program and schoolchildren tour program in the spring.

It was a lifelong dream of Ursela Wieczorek to raise her children on a farm. It was a dream come true for her, with the help of the local 4-H program. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

Members: 4-H was a 'dream come true' for families

By RITA DERBIN
ANP Staff Writer

When Ursula Wieczorek was growing up, she loved to visit her grandparents' farm in St. Clair and dreamed of having her own stamping ground for farmyard animals some day.

She thought that if she ever had children, it would be wonderful to rear them in the country, surrounded by animals and fresh air.

Wieczorek is a living proof that some dreams do come true.

Wieczorek was married and had three children. She and her husband, John, were living in Detroit when they decided to buy a farm in Belleville. Before buying the farm, though, Wieczorek met Mary Herring, a 4-H leader who had high praises for the organization.

"I got involved in 4-H because I wanted to learn about farm life – raising animals properly and the like. But I wanted my kids to learn, too." Wieczorek explained. "I have horses, swine, dairy goats, a brown swift dairy cow and a calf which is being raised for breeding beef on my farm right now."

Wieczorek is now a 4-H leader, taking charge of the "Mustangers" club. All three of her children, John Jr., David and Heather are active in the club.

Wieczorek admits that the 4-H has helped her and her children learn about farm life. But membership in the group has meant much more than a farming education, she said.

"The program gives the kids lots of self confidence and experience and has also taught them a lot about science and animal care," Wieczorek said. "I enjoy being a leader because I can see so much growth in the children. 4-H gives them something to do. They always have things to do, whether it's crafts or livestock showings or going to club meetings.

"The kids have a lot more respect for life after caring for animals, and strong friendships develop through 4-H," she continued. "I know I have gotten to know great people through the program, and the kids do, too."

Membership in Wieczorek's "Mustangers" includes 15 children, who are between 5 and 17 years old. The mix of ages is good for the club, she said, because older members have a chance to show the younger ones "the ropes."

"We get the kids when they're young," Wieczorek said. "They are in a protege program until they are 10 years old and able to show their own animals." Wieczorek also gives preschool and kindergarten students tours of her farm and talks about the animals. She even allows the youngsters to milk the goats.

Debbie Rowsey, a teacher's aide at Tyler Elementary School, in Belleville, is also very active in the local 4-H program. She is the leader of "Super Stock," an offspring club of the "Mustangers."

Rowsey explained that when the number of children in the Mustangers became too large to give students individual attention, the group was split into two separate groups.

Rowsey, like Wieczorek, always dreamed of having a farm to rear her children.

"I lived in Wayne and became involved with kids in 4-H growing up because I loved horses. I knew that I would want my kids to know all about animals when they were growing up, too." Rowsey explained.

Rowsey feels that her two children, Carl and Paul, have learned valuable information that they will take with them no matter what they decide to do in the future.

"What they will always remember is getting up in front of people while showing their animals and in the club when they do presentations. They're not afraid to speak their minds," Rowsey said. "Most importantly, we've all learned kindness through 4-H. It may seem silly that an adult learned kindness from animals, but it's true. Animals have feelings and get hurt just like humans."

ANNIVERSARIES

Oddy — 25th

George and Joan Oddy of Odyssey Drive, Sumpter Township, observed their 25th wedding anniversary on April 27 with a renewal of their vows at the First United Methodist Church of Belleville. The Rev. George Spencer officiated.

Serving as best man and matron of honor were Lawrence and Carolyn Lawson, also of Odyssey Drive. The Oddys served as best man and matron of honor for the Lawsons 15 years ago. Daughter Monica was the ringbearer and the wedding song, Endless Love was sung by Marchia Wyche of Sumpter Township.

All of the plans and arrangements for the renewing of the vows were made by George Oddy who, with the help of sons, Mark and Matthew, and their friends, Michelle Lamance and Kim Smith, planned the weekend "getaway" trip. The Oddys also celebrated their aniversary with a trip to Washington, D.C. during Easter week to see the cherry blossoms in bloom and visit the Smithsonian Institution.

Mr. and Mrs. William Oddy

George William (Bill) Oddy and Joan L. Wisenor Oddy were married April 27, 1963, at St. Cyprian's Church, Riverview. They are the parents of Mark, 23; Matthew, 20, and Monica, 14, and the grandparents of Trevor Allen, 1.

The Oddys have resided in the community for 12 years. He has been employed at Hydramatic at Willow Run for 22 years and previously served in the U.S. Air Force for four years. She is the clerk of Sumpter Township and was a teacher at Romulus High School for seven years prior to her election.

They enjoy visiting both sets of parents in Florida and making trips to the old family homestead at St. Ignace. He enjoys sailboat racing, sports and family activities. She enjoys commmunity service projects and family activities.

JUST MARRIED

Matzenbach — Kohr

Kristen Anne Matzenbach, of Ann Arbor, and Jeffrey William Kohr, of Ann Arbor, were united in marriage March 26 in an afternoon service at the Lutheran Church of The Redeemer, in Birmingham. The Rev. Duane Wuggazzer officiated during the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of William Edward Matzenbach, of Birmingham. She attended Edison College, in Fort Myers, Fla., and works at Henyln Care, in Ann Arbor.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kohr, of North Shore Drive, Belleville. He attended Ferris State College and works at Naylor Chrysler Plymouth, in Ann Arbor.

The church was decorated with rose, pink and lavender flowers for the candlelight

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Kohr ceremony. About 200 guests attended.

Music was provided by soloist Gary R. Shepard, the groom's brother-in-law.

The bridal dress was a candlelight taffata gown, with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice decorated with lace and pearls, cathedral-length train, puffed half sleeves with bow and rose buds of the same material. Her veil was a companion to the gown, with a lace cap, waist-length, bordered with matching lace.

The bride carried a bouquet of white gardenias, freesia, roses and stephanotis.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Karen Stiphout, the bride's sister, served as matron of honor for the event. Bridesmaids included Lisa Anne Matzenbach and Sarah Anne Matzenbach, sisters of the bride, Sandra Kohr and Susan Shepard, sisters of the groom, and Lynn Cicillini.

Best man for the occasion was Joseph Bowles, a friend of the groom. Ushers included Dr. Richard M. Stiphout, brother-in-law of the bride, Gary Shepard, brother-in-law of the groom, and Alfred Douglas, Steven Booth and Thomas Smith, friends of the groom.

Food

Please, keep this our secret

If Mildred finds out, I'm dead meat.

No joke. Mildred is my mother and a better pie baker is probably unknown in the history of all kitchens. Recently I discovered that in one of the many moves she and I have made from home to home during our lifetimes, I have come into possession of one of her favorite pie recipe books.

No big deal one might think, except that Mildred always bragged to everyone, particularly her dearly despised sister Florence, that she never, ever used a recipe and each of her luscious concoctions was "just something I threw together."

Threw together in a pig's eye. Old Mildred was just as dependent on recipes as the rest of us, I've discovered, although she did have me fooled for a lot of years. To give credit where credit is due, she's given me her recipe for pie crust and provided explicit directions to me in the methods of duplicating her technique all to no avail. There is nobody, nobody, nobody who can match my mother's pie crust. And, while we're at it, it wouldn't be a bad bet to surmise that even with these recipes, it may be tough to match her fillings.

Hah! I am no longer fooled by all her nonchalance. The chocolate and brown sugar stains on the pages of the cookbook reveal the truth. Old Mildred slaved in the kitchen to impress and delight her family (especially Florence) much the same way many of us (yours truly included) do today. Only she had more time to do it and a slave (me) to clean up the kitchen.

At any rate, here is a recipe from the most stained pages and one that brings back fond memories of long ago. Please, please, don't tell Mildred. She'll kill me.

Magic pie

Prepared 9-inch baked pie crust

FILLING

3/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 egg yolks
20-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained, reserving 1/2 cup liquid

MERINGUE

2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 cup water
3 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
6 tablespoons sugar

In medium saucepan, combine 3/4 cup sugar, 2 Tablespoons flour and 1/8 teaspoon salt and blend well. Stir in sour cream, lemon juice, egg yolks, drained pineapple and reserved liquid. Cook over medium heat until mixture boils and thickens, stirring constantly. Cover with plastic wrap and cool to lukewarm. Pour into cooled, baked crust.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. In small saucepan, combine 2 Tablespoons sugar and cornstarch. Stir in water and blend until smooth. Cook over medium heat until mixture is thick and clear, stirring constantly. Cool. In small bowl, beat egg whites, 1/8 teaspoon salt and vanilla until soft peaks form. Gradually add 6 Tablespoons of sugar and cornstarch mixture. Continue beating until stiff peaks form. Spread meringue over filling and seal to edge of crust. Bake at 350 dgrees for 15 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Cool completely before serving.

Cooking for kids

Making food for children is Eartha Deyampert's specialty. She left work in the airline industry four years ago and now serves up hot and cold meals to area children, including Tamaiya Smith, 20 months (from left), Chante Greene, 3, Chantelle Abner, 19 months, and Joi Harrington, 2 1/2. ANP photos by Ann Grimes

Ex-airline worker is flying with good recipes for kids

Eartha Deyampert is a woman who knows a good thing when she sees it. And from behind the reservation counter at United Airlines about four years ago, she decided that leaving her children in a day care center while she worked was a good thing, but even better would be owning a day care facility of her own.

"I really was inspired by the people where I took my children. Their teachers were so enthusiastic and inspired, it encouraged me to try. I also thought that parents need a good support system and that this would be a good career move for me," Deyampert said.

Leaving her own three children in day care facilities when they were only six weeks of age gave Deyampert a familiarity with the rigorous requirements of such operations. Undeterred, she began her licensed day care center about four years ago in Inkster where she and her family have lived for nine years.

"I named the center after my three kids, that's why it's Three Bears," Deyampert said. She credits her children with being a staff all by themselves and noted that while both her sons seem to enjoy having the 12 youngsters she cares for around, her daughter is the most enthusiastic.

"She brings ideas home from school for games and activities and after she does her homework, she gets involved in playing with the kids and in reading them stories," Deyampert said.

But obviously, one of Deyampert's biggest challenges was in pleasing a large variety of tiny appetites. No small task in these days of fast food and sophisticated tastes even with junior gourmets.

Deyampert learned her culinary skills from her mother while she was growing up in Detroit. "My mother raised five girls and they all can cook," Deyampert said with a chuckle. Even now, Deyampert admitted, "I call my mother once in awhile to check on some things."

Deyampert's daughter, she said, will probably learn to cook just as she did, by watching what her mother does in the kitchen. "I think she'll pattern herself after me. Sometimes I find her watching me in the kitchen when I wasn't aware she was there," she said.

RECIPES, PAGE C-4

"My mother always told us, 'You can come on and watch because someday you'll have to cook,' and she was right," Deyampert said.

Her husband John works full time at the day-care facility now and shares some of the cooking chores for the children. "He's been working with me full-time for about a year and a half. He was formerly an insurance agent, Deyampert explained.

"I do the planning of the meals on the weekend and then the shopping and we sort of share the cooking. It's really a matter of being prepared and consistent, I think. If you don't have a plan, feeding 12 kids would be a hard thing to do," Deyampert said.

"I do love kids. Right now we have 12 we care for. The oldest is 8 and the youngest is 11 weeks," she said.

Deyampert, who just earned her associate degree in child development at the University of Michigan at Dearborn is a stickler for good nutrition, along with making foods kids will eat and enjoy.

"I watch the kids and observe what they like, what they send back and don't eat and I've learned what to serve them. Sometimes, the trick is in how you serve food. I've learned to use bright-colored plates, and lots of finger foods. I do a lot of decorated foods and for sure food that doesn't run into each other on the plate," Deyampert said.

"I use cookie cutters for bread and cut lunch meat into triangles so that kids can serve themselves sometimes. That promotes a feeling of independence that is great for them. I don't do gravies and sauces, that is just too frustrating for little leadership capacity. There they act as a volunteer leader. They whole backbone of the organization is volunteerism," Leskosky explained.

Chantelle Abner (above) has few complaints about Deyampert's cooking. She often makes fruit plates for the children (left) to enjoy with sandwiches and vegetables. The secret to making a hit with children, Deyampert said, was learned from her mother, who always told her she should learn to cook.

Despite the fact that all leaders, members and others involved in the 4-H program are unpaid, money is still a factor in paying for several club-sponsored trips and outings. To help with the costs, members participate in frequent fundraising activities, including a recent auction.

Nevertheless, all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. 4-H members will attest to it and, therefore, also participate in several community service projects, fairs and shows.

"4-H members participate in the Wayne County Fair each year. They wouldn't have a fair if it weren't for the 4-H participation," Leskosky said.

The 4-H'ers compete for ribbons in their various crafts and projects and earn cash awards for their efforts at the fair ($3 for a blue ribbon, $2 red and $1 white).

In addition, the 4-H club sponsors shows and exhibits at local malls each year, visit nursing home residents, plan activity days and animal displays for area school groups and a popular pet-a-farm in the spring and summer. (This year, the pet-a-farm has been set for May 16 to June 10 and June 27 to Aug. 12 at the county extension offices, 5454 Venoy Road, Wayne.)

Admittedly, 4-H represents hours of hard work and planning, said Leskosky, a 4-H club leader for four years. But what makes it all worthwhile?

"The philosophy of 4-H is learning by doing. Over the years, I have learned so much. It's certainly a learning experience," Leskosky explained. "I don't know of any other youth program like this."

Membership in the 4-H is free, although most clubs have low-priced dues. To learn more about becoming a member, call 721-6576.

Kids

ones. Sometimes just the colorful plates and appealing appearance will give kids more inspiration to try new foods," she added.

The secret to her success in pleasing tiny appetites, Deyampert admitted, is really a secret. "I really probably shouldn't admit this in this day and age, but I do add a pinch of sugar to things and a little extra butter--maybe just a little more than a recipe calls for. I even put a pinch of sugar into ground beef for a little extra flavor for the kids," she said.

"I stick to foods from the four basic food groups and make sure that the meals are nutritious and balanced. That's very important when serving children," Deyampert said.

"I guess I'd have to say I like to cook because I like to eat," Deyampert said.

Cheese wheezers

Bisquick mix
2 cups Italian sausage or bacon
1 1/2 cup shredded cheese

Follow directions for bisquits on Bisquick package. Add cooked, chopped sausage or bacon to prepared mix. Combine with shredded cheese. Roll prepared mixture into balls and lightly grease and flour a cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees until golden brown. Top with melted butter and strawberry jam.

Mothers winners to appear May 25

Winners in the Second annual Associated Newspapers Mother of the Year contest will be featured in the Wednesday, May 25 edition of the newspaper.

Due to the many last-minute entries, we have decided to delay any results in the contest for one week. The winners were to be announced May 18.

Six mothers will be honored in the contest, one in each community served by this newspaper. The six will receive special gifts for the honor.

Fruity bunny rabbit salad

8-10 meduim carrots
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup pineapple chunks
1 cup watermelon balls
1/2 cup shredded coconut

Shred carrots and add mayonnaise and sugar to taste. Add raisins, pineapple and watermelon balls. Mix 1 teaspoon of pineapple juice with coconut and sprinkle over top. Chill before serving.

Mexican jumping beans

1-2 large cans of baked beans with bacon (B & M preferred)
1 pound ground beef
1 tablespoon honey
1/2 onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon chili powder
1/2 cup shredded cheese

Brown ground beef and season to taste. Drain all excess fat. Combine ground beef and remaining ingredients in baked beans. Add cheese as topping and bake for 15 to 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

Eggplant parmesan

2 large eggplants
2 cans tomato paste or Ragu spaghetti sauce
1 package parmesan cheese
1 cup grated celery
1 can mushrooms
1/2 cup green pepper (chopped)
1/2 cup chopped onions

Batter fry sliced eggplant until lightly brown. Drain all excess oil. Lay eggplant slices in casserole dish and sprinkle mixture of celery, mushrooms, green pepper and onions sparingly making two to three layers. Mix tomato paste with water or Ragu sauce and pour sauce over layered ingredients. Sprinkle grated cheese over top. Bake for one hour at 350 degrees.

Quick apple crisp

6-8 medium apples
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon real vanilla flavoring
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 cups crumbled vanilla wafers
1/2 cup almonds coarsely chopped

Dice apples into chunks (not too thin). Add butter or margarine, vanilla flavoring, raisins and brown sugar and mix well. Line a lightly buttered baking sheet with crumbled vanilla wafers and top with the apple mixture. Sprinkle with pats of butter, almonds and more cookie crumbles. Bake at 350 degrees until apples are moist. Top with vanilla ice cream.

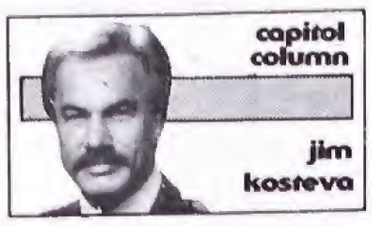
State workers set recycling example



It is estimated that, in just one and one-half days, Michigan residents generate enough solid waste to fill the Silverdome to the top. More than half of what we throw away is waste paper, which ultimately winds up in landfills.

Decreasing landfill space and other environmental considerations have led many state government offices to join together to divert recyclable office paper from disposal facilities.

House employees recently joined more than 3,500 other government workers who participate in the state Office Paper Recycling program. It is estimated the average state worker discards about 4 pounds of office paper each day. With very little effort, the OPR participants are helping to divert as much as 70 percent of the paper from the state waste stream.

The benefits of recycling state office paper are threefold. Not only does it help to save taxpayers' money, but it conserves energy and helps reduce air and water pollution.

Recycling paper uses 30 percent less energy than making it directly from trees. Every ton of paper recycled is equivalent to saving an estimated 22.4 gallons of gasoline and 17 trees.

These environmental and economic concerns have been a major motivating factor for the state OPR program. Rather than throwing away used office paper, state workers put in a desk-top container. When the container is full, the paper is placed into a centrally located corrugated bin. Each corrugated bin is collected and emptied, and the paper is shredded and baled and sold to a paper mill.

The recovered paper is used to manufacture new products, such as wrapping paper, brochures, stationery, greeting cards, tissues and paper toweling.

Michigan is a great state, full of natural wonders. State lawmakers have taken many steps to preserve the Michigan environment. Our state bottle deposit law, pollution control legislation and the Office Paper Recycling program are just a few examples of action taken to guarantee Michigan beauty for future generations.

Teach your dog as you would yourself

When people enroll their dog in obedience class, they enter the room on the first night of class with their dogs jumping, pulling and misbehaving. After the first half-hour of class, these same dogs are walking quite calmly by their master's side.

Naturally, the dogs aren't perfect, but they show a great improvement compared to the way they walked into the classroom earlier.

One of our biggest rewards is seeing the progress a dog can make in only one hour and the look of pride and satisfaction the owners display in their dog. (This is lesson number-one.)

The second week of class, the people enter the classroom, somewhat more subdued, and talk and act a bit more authoritative toward their dog. They are not as excited about their dog's performance, but they do give praise when commands are performed properly.

Here's where things begin to change – and not for the better.

The third week of class, the people enter the room generally anxious to talk to me. They each have dozens of complaints about their dog, complaints they never would have had about things they never would have noticed had they not enrolled in obedience training. And their dog had only completed three weeks of instruction.

This disappointment in their dog is totally natural but also totally unfair. Yes, we must learn to control our dogs. Yes, every dog is capable of performing obedience, and most every dog will do its best to avoid it. But it is unfair to expect perfection in such a short period of time and simultaneously unfair to show disappointment or bitterness, which solves nothing and prolongs development of the bond so necessary when owning a dog.

Keep this in mind: A reluctant performer performs reluctantly. So without encouragement, your dog will perform but not with the joyful enthusiasm possible from a dog given praise and approval from his "partner" – the owner.

When a dog's performance makes you upset or angry, you've already lost that particular training session. Anger accomplishes nothing and wastes constructive training time. You must not let lack of perfection in your dog's performance bother you. You make mistakes, too. And if you've ever studied another language or taken a course in ceramics, for example, or arobics or karate, you know you don't become fluent or an expert in that area of study until you've devoted time to it. And how fast would you learn if each time you made a mistake, your instructor stomped off in a huff or shot you a dirty look or yelled at you? You'd probably give up!

Well, your dog won't give up! It will always try to earn your praise and affection. Can you live up to your dogs admiration of you?

Caramel candy pie

Prepared 9-inch baked pie crust

FILLING

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
14-ounce package vanilla caramels
1 cup milk
1 1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped

TOPPING

2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup slivered almonds

In small bowl, sprinkle gelatin over water and let stand. In medium heavy saucepan, combine caramels and milk and heat over low heat until caramels are melted and mixture is smooth, stirring occasionally. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Refrigerate about an hour or until slightly thickened but not set, stirring occasionally. Fold caramel mixture into whipped cream. Pour into cooled, baked pie crust and refrigerate until set, about two hours.

In small skillet, combine sugar and almonds. Cook over low heat until sugar is melted and almonds are golden brown, stirring constantly. Immediately spread on foil or greased cookie sheet. Cool and then break apart. Just before serving, garnish pie with caramelized almonds.

MOMS, DADS, GRADS:

The Associated Newspapers wants to help make this graduation year extra special. We are offering special souvenir plates and congratulatory messages in our Wednesday, June 15 editions.

Souvenir plates

Each high school covered by the Associated Newspapers – Wayne Memorial, John Glenn, Inkster High, Belleville High, Romulus High, Plymouth-Canton and Plymouth-Salem – will be featured in a special full-page photo story of graduation day and related activities. The page will be a souvenir in itself.

However, parents may wish to order non-yellowing, aluminum plates of the page after it has been published. Charge for each plate is $20, payable in advance. Order blanks will be available in the June 15 newspaper and at the Associated Newspapers offices.

Congratulatory messages

Parents, friends or relatives may wish to send the graduate a special message in the June 15 newspaper. One pullout page will be used for the graduation messages (example below). Cost is $10 per message. Maximum length is five lines.

To order, call the Associated Newspapers classified ads department at 729-3300 or 697-9191 (in the Belleville area).

'Smoking' becomes dirty word

70 percent of employers now have new policy

> Statisics form the American Lung Association in Southeastern Michigan indicate that nearly 70 percent of all American companies are in the process of implementing such policies.

By BARBARA ALBERT
ANP Staff Writer

Smoking is becoming a dirty word among most area businesses.

The public has known that cigarette smoking leads to lung cancer, emphysema and other diseases for quite some time. But 27 percent of all Americans still risk "lighting up."

A survey of nearly 3,000 adults published in the Feb. 10 edition of the Detroit Free Press netted these results: 28.7 percent of males between the ages of 18 and 34 smoke, 33.7 percent of women in the same age group smoke; among those age 35-54, 36.1 percent of males smoke and 30.7 percent of females smoke, in the age 55 and older category, 17.6 percent of the males smoke and 20 percent of the females smoke.

Despite the high percentage of smokers and the results of health tests among smokers, it has just been recently that those findings are sinking in and affecting the way companies deal with their employees, prospective employees and even customers.

It used to be common to sit in a bus and choke on the smoke from another passenger's cigarette. But, more and more, smoke is disappearing from places frequented by the general public. This change in status has those who really enjoy a good smoke really steamed.

Several area companies surveyed have implemented or are preparing to implement smoking policies. However, most were hesitant to have their names released in print. Statistics from the American Lung Association in Southeastern Michigan indicate that nearly 70 percent of all American companies are in the process of implementing such policies.

George Latkes, of the Michigan Department of Public Health, said he continues to see more and more companies put smoking policies into effect. But he sees many of them challenged by those unwilling to give up their freedom to smoke.

"There are a lot of protests to the policies," he said.

The Ford Motor Co. allows smoking on the assembly line, as long as flammable materials are not nearby. Ford officials have, however, set aside a non-smoking area in the cafeteria and offerred seminars on how to quit smoking.

One employee had no complaints about the arrangements, adding that, sometimes, the machinery give off more smoke than the cigarettes.

Most companies have prohibited smoking in the work area but have established specific areas for smokers to light up.

Most school officials surveyed have outlawed smoking everywhere but in a portion of the faculty lounge. Air purifiers, according to most school employees surveyed, have become a favorite appliance in the school building.

Garage doors have become big business for Randy Johnson. He is the owner of American Entries, a new garage door business in Garden City. ANP photo by Ann Grimes/staff photographer

Open door to the future

Experience pays off for entrepreneur

BUSINESS PROFILE

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

More than 20 years of experience have made Randy Johnson an expert in the garage door business. That is why so many employers like him on their payroll.

However, Johnson preferred a payroll of his own and decided to open his own business this year.

Johnson is the owner of the Garden City-based American Entries, a garage door installation and service business. Although the firm is not yet one of the largest in the area, Johnson is content with the dream he has fulfilled.

The company has one employee who answers phones and makes an occasional sale. She also does much of the paper work – Johnson's least favorite part of owning a business.

"I like being outside and doing the work," said Johnson, who in the past worked for Taylor Door, of Detroit, and Quality Overhead Door, of Taylor. "I never liked being inside and working at a desk. I like the outdoors, and I enjoy putting in the doors."

Johnson also likes being his own boss and felt the time was right to try his hand at running his own company.

"It was just time to go for it," said Johnson. "You work with someone long enough and realize you could be doing this yourself. The population is here, and I've always liked this area, so I decided to give it a shot."

Johnson has encountered a few of the problems that come with starting a business. Nevertheless, he is calling his first plunge into the business world a success.

"I wouldn't say we have an abundance of work, but it has been going well," he explained. "It's better than what I thought from the projections. I think a lot of people don't know I am here."

Johnson deals in what he calls the "top of the line" garage doors, including five from Taylor Doors. He also sells doors made of medal, fiberglass and wood.

His biggest seller, however, is the "steel-raised panel, vinyl-clad door."

"These are excellent garage doors," Johnson said. "They require no maintenance on the vinyl, they have a great wood-like appearance, you can wash them very easily, and they last longer than any other door. There is no better energy-efficient door on the market."

And if ht evinyl-clad just doesn't seem perfect, Johnson has several other varieties from which to choose.

"We have 20 different types of doors, and I let the customer choose which door he wants," said Johnson. "I really like the doors I sell. If I didn't, I wouldn't sell them."

Like most small businesses, Johnson focuses on personal attention and customer service.

"I have the ability to get more personal with the customer and find out exactly what he wants," said Johnson. "A lot of people say they get the cold shoulder when they go to some places. But not here.

"I don't even ask for the money until the job is done and the customer is satisfied. I also offer a 15-year guarantee, and I don't want to go back on jobs where I have to fix something because I don't have the time.

"That's why I offer a quality door," he explained.

American Entries is located on Ford Road, in Garden City.

Ford Probe nets a good local review

By TERRY JACOBY
ANP Staff Writer

Jack Demmer Ford, in Wayne, has been riding on the success story of the Ford Motor Co. for the past two years. With in introduction of the 1989 Ford Probe LX, Demmer staff members are hoping that ride will be even smoother.

The Probe is an aerodynamic, front-wheel-drive sports car, which Ford officials are hoping will compete with the imports in the small specialty-car market.

"This car is aimed at those who might be interested in buying a foreign car, like a Toyota Celica or Honda Accord," said Jim Demmer, of Jack Demmer Ford. "It is actually Ford's first foreign-type sports car."

The two-door hatchback features a 12-valve, 2.2-liter, intercooled-turbocharged engine with automatic adjustable suspension, power four-wheel, disc brakes and 15-inch performance tires.

Standard equipment includes a five-speed manual transaxle, power rack-and-pinion steering, retractable halogen headlamps, performance instrumentation and reclining front bucket seats with console.

"It is a very exciting car, and it is the highest quality sports car I've ever been in," said Demmer. "It handles very well and has a lot of 'get up and go' for a 4-cylinder car. It also has an entirely different feel. It really is a unique automobile."

The car, which is on a limited production run, went on sale at Ford dealerships May 12. The People in business is a listing of the names and faces making business news this week.

GARY WOJCIK, A Michigan Bell employee from Dearborn, received a commendation for heroism from the city of Inkster April 18, after saving four Inkster children from their burning home.

Wojcik, a service technician, was installing dial tone at a nearby residence when the customer noticed fire and smoke billowing from a neighbor's home. The customer told Wojcik that children lived in the burning house on Magnolia Drive.

Wojcik rushed to the house, kicked down the front door and woke Joni Johnson, whose children were watching the living room drapes go up in flames.

"We gathered the kids and ran out of the house," Wojcik recalled. "The fire had gotten so bad there was nothing I could do to contain it, and then the smoke made it almost impossible to breathe."

After rescuing Johnson and her four children – ranging from 5 months to 5 years old – Wojcik returned to the house where he had been installing service and finished the job.

Inkster firefighters lauded Wojcik's quick response to the fire. His supervisor also has nominated him for a Vail Medal for Noteworthy Public Service, the highest honor given by Bell companies to recognize valor, quick action and disregard of personal danger to save another life.

Panic sell-off shakes the stock market

Federal Reserve Board Chariman Alan Greenspan seems to have made his "summer strategy" decision. It appears that he is willing to tinker with the economy rather than make a mistake by being heavy-handed.

We may see the Fed being an active buyer of securities (putting cash reserves into the system), but, at some point, that inventory will have to be reduced. Further, another series break in the stock market could derail this strategy.

Upward pressure on interest rates is still apparent. If this continues, it could build pressure for additional prime rate increases. Bonds and interest-sensitive issues will trade in a narrow range, with a downward price bias. Gold and silver buyers are mixed as to the possibility of raped inflation, and prices will be flat and trade in a narrow range.

For this week, the short-term traders will use any market strength to close out positions. Selling may accelerate as we move through this session. Intermediate-term traders will be looking at second tier and small capitalized issues, but their buying enthusiasm will be no match for the selling pressure.

Long-term traders do not seem to have much interest in any position.

This week, the market will try to find solid footing, with little success. The market enthusiasm of last week was a product of light volume. As buying drys up, the market will drift lower.

The market moving lower will kick off stop orders, and the decline will feed on itself. There seems to be little to stand in the way of a rapid market decline.

INCOME SPECIAL: While your short-term money market rates are paying you about 6 to 6 1/2 percent, Detroit Edison common stock is paying a $1.68 per-share dividend and, at a $12 per-share price, is equal to a yield of 14 percent.

Penalties add up for procrastinators

tax time

If you missed the April 15 deadline for filing your taxes, you may face stiffer penalties under the 1986 federal tax law.

Penalty for failing to pay taxes on April 15 increases from 1/2 to 1 percent for each month the tax bill remains outstanding. However, this increase only takes effect after the IRS notifies the person that it intends to levy the person's assets. The penalty cannot exceed 25 percent of the tax not paid.

The penalty increases 1 percent for each additional month a person does not pay. For example, if you owed $5,000 to the government, your penalty for the first month would be $50 (1 percent) until the penalty reached the maximum of $1,250 (25 percent).

If a person is found guilty of fraud, the penalty is increased from 50 to 75 percent of the underpayment plus half of the interest on the amount due to fraud. The penalty now applies only to the amount of underpayment due to fraud. Yet, the burden is on the person found fraudulent to prove that the entire underpayment is not ascribed to fraud.

Interest on late-income tax payments will be more costly in the new law. Only 40 percent of the interest was deductible in 1988, unlike 65 percent in 1987. Furthermore, for underpayments, the IRS collects 1 percent more than what it pays for overpayments.

The maximum cumulative penalty increases from $50,000 to $100,000 per year for a businesses that fail to file an information return with the IRS or fail to supply a copy of the information to the taxpayers.

The negligence penalty, which is for people who fail to report on their income tax return income that shows up on Form W-2 or 1099 information reports, is still 5 percent of the underpayment. Now, however, the penalty applies to all taxes.

Nevertheless, there is still hope for those people that have found a mistake in their income tax returns before the IRS has found the mistake. When a person finds an income error or a missing figure, then he or she must file an amended return showing the mistake made on the income tax return to avoid being penalized.

suggested retail price is $10,448 for the GL model, $11,430 for the LX model and $13,580 for the GT.

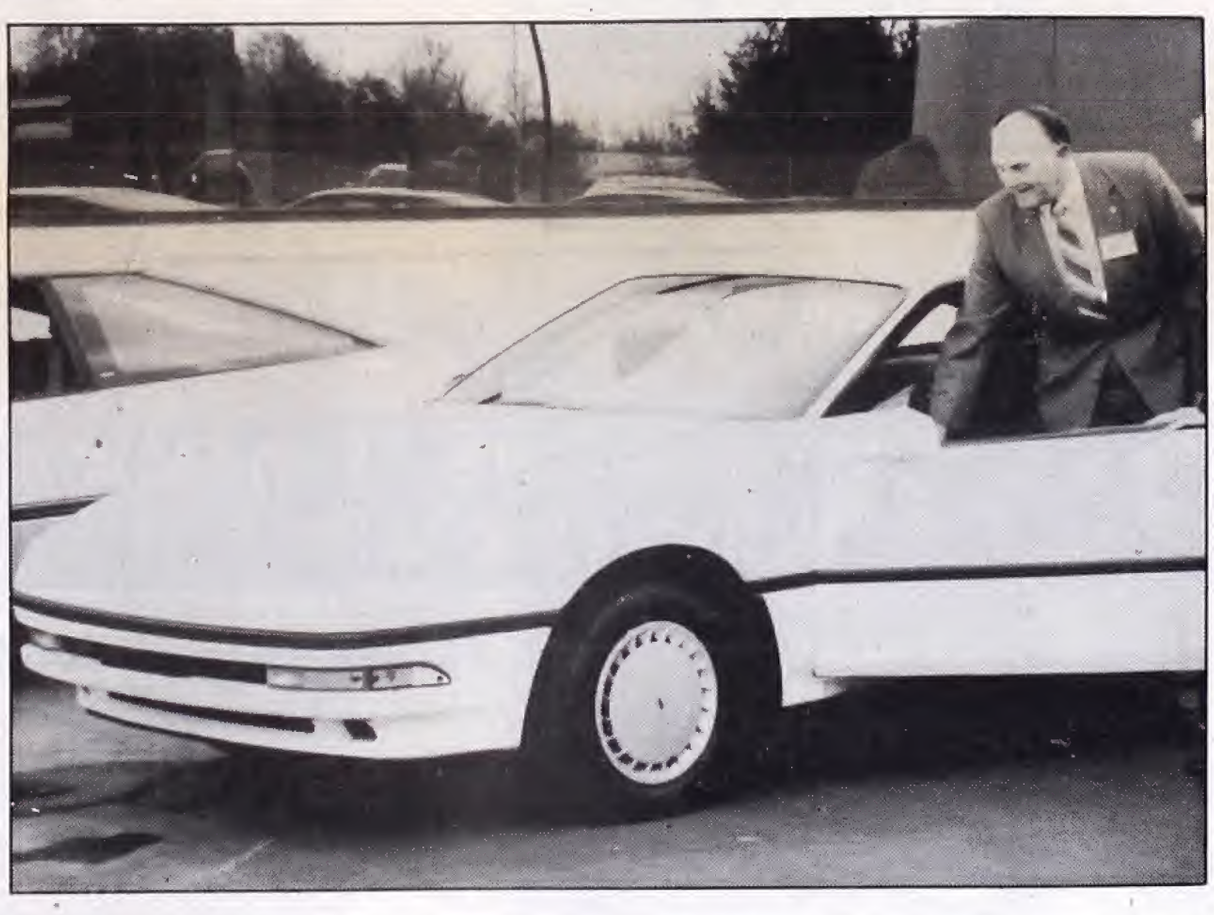
"We are aiming at the income level of around $40,000 per year," said Demmer. "The car is similar in price to the Mustang but aimed at a slightly different market."

The Probe, which has a number of similar features found on a concept car of the same name, is being built at the Mazda Plant, in Flat Rock.

"The reason it is being built there is because the plant is a new, state-of-the-art facility, which is needed to build such an automobile," said Demmer. "We are getting them one at a time until production goes into full swing, and they usually sell within a day. The only way we can keep one around here is to use it as a rental and let the sales people drive it."

Through early May, more than 6,000 Probes had been sold, including 10 at Jack Demmer. Dealers have placed 77,000 orders for the Probe, which is enough to fill production schedules through October, Demmer said.

"The car is already selling beyond our expectations," Demmer explained.



The 1989 Ford Probe LX has several standard options, as observed by Jack Demmer, owner of Jack Demmer Ford, in Wayne (above). Stanard on the Probe will be a five-speed manual transaxle, power rack-and-pinion steering, performance instrumentation and reclining front bucket seats with console. Ten of the cars have already been sold at the Wayne dealership. Demand for the car is so great, in fact, that dealership officials say "they usually sell within a day." Special photo to ANP

Smoking

State and local governments, according to Latkes, have had smoking policies implemented for them. He explained that all local and state government offices are required to prohibit smoking except in designated areas.

Smoking has also been banned in elevators, on buses and, most recently, on airplanes – much to the chagrin of those who don't want to "kick the habit."

When interviewing a prospective employee, employers are not allowed to ask the age, sex or nationality of the person. By default, however, the employer can ask if that person smokes.

Latkes said because it is not listed as an inappropriate question, it must be allowed. Whether or not the answer makes a difference in how the employer chooses a job candidate is another question.

"I am sure some businesses do use smoking as a basis for hiring or not hiring a person," Latkes said.

He said he has heard of such cases, and, as far as he knows, it is up to the discretion of the employer.

Latkes said people often draw certain conclusions about a person who smokes. Whether or not that is a fair way to judge a person is up for debate.

SENIOR CENTERS: Life in area senior citizens centers doesn't center around card playing and conversation. Local seniors are participating in a wide range of other activities at the centers, including classes in various subjects, field trips and exercise 4

MONTH OF EVENTS: May has been designated as national Older Americans month. Several local activities have been planned in honor of the month, including free legal aid and health screenings 7

WHERE DO YOU GO?: Where can a senior citizen obtain help with home chores, house financing or legal problems? Various state and federal agencies provide all of those services and more – just for the asking. The trick to obtaining the services, however, is in knowing where to call 9

SOCIAL SECURITY: How sound is the federal Social Security system? Will the program be around in years to come? A former official of the Social Security administration debates the issue and presents a few enlightening facts 10

THE NEW RICH: The majority of elderly people today live in condominiums, take frequent trips and enjoy life with the new rich, right? Wrong. Most seniors today are fighting a life of poverty and are struggling to survive 11

ON THE COVER

GOLDEN YEARS: Life after age 55. What is a person to do, where does he go, who can he turn to for help. May has been designated as national Older Americans month in hopes of providing the general public with a keener awareness of the 1980s issues of the elderly. This week in Today, we will examine the offerings for our local seniors, debate current issues and offer a few answers to the many questions our seniors must live with each day.

SENIOR CENTERS

Community organizations are for more than card playing

By THOMAS M. VARCIE

Senior citizen centers are like a second home to the elderly. With years of progress, senior centers have changed from an atmosphere of card playing and chatting to include exercise classes, field trips and a long list of educational opportunities.

Seven local senior centers have been included in the transition from a traditional senior gathering place to a contemporary senior center.

What follows is a list of the local senior centers and information about the programming offered there.

Canton Recreation Center

The Canton Recreation Center, open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, is the site of a balanced program for different types of senior interests, according to center Director Dianne Neihengen.

The center is located at 44237 Michigan Ave., at the southeast corner of Michigan Avenue at Sheldon Road, two miles west of I-275.

To be a member of the center, an individual must be at least 55 years old and a resident of Canton Township. There are no membership fees for the center, however, individual clubs do have monthly dues.

Activities for members, Neihengen said, include leisure time classes, a year-round sports program, trips, health speakers and free blood pressure screenings.

For special events, there is a mixture of field trips and activities. Upcoming events include: a June 7 trip to Boblo for Senior Day; a June 11 concert featuring Luciano Pavarotti at Joe Louis Arena; a pool tournament June 22; card party June 24; low-impact aerobic class from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday, beginning in June and ending in July; and a July 19 and 20 AARP safe driving refresher course.

The program, Neihengen said, is extremely popular and is designed to give personalized service.

"We are considered a focal point for the seniors. We try to meet the needs of people. It's a very nice program. We pride ourselves on the personal aspect. We know most of the people by name," Neihengen said.

More information can be obtained about the center by calling 397-1000, extensions 277, 278 or 279. Ask for Dianne Neihengen or any staff member.

The Dyer Center, Westland

The Timothy J. Dyer Center is the home of the senior adult program offered by the Wayne-Westland Community Schools. The center is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and is located at 36745 Marquette Road, between Wayne Road and Newburgh, Westland.

Polly Malaney is the center director.

"(The program) provides educational programs and social programs for the seniors. There are high school completion classes and leisure classes available to take," Malaney said. "Primarily, we gear toward the educational part."

In all, 22 classes are offered, ranging from American government and math to the senior kitchen band.

But the center is not entirely educational. Other activities include free health screenings, dances and dinners, bingo, craft sales and free cholesterol screenings.

"It's so diversified. We offer so many fun classes. Also, it's a nice mixture of all kinds of people," Malaney said.

Two senior clubs in the area also call the center their home. The Tuesday and Wednesday clubs, as they are called, have a combined membership of about 900. Membership fee is $1 per month.

Special events at the center include about two field trips each month, dances and special projects. On June 10, the center will be the site of a Polka festival and dance, featuring ethnic food, an orchestra, dancing and entertainment. On May 24, a flea market will be staged at the center, open to seniors and the public.

"We do the overnight travels, but, mainly, we do one-day trips. In July, we'll be going to the Toledo Zoo. On June 16, we'll go to Boblo," Malaney said.

"The Dyer Center offers classes and activities to enhance the lives of senior citizens and to keep themselves involved and busy," she continued.

Additional information about activities or membership is available by calling 595-2161.

Inkster Twin Towers

The city of Inkster senior program began as a pilot program in 1972, according to Marjorie Frazier, director of the Inkster Comprehensive Service Program for the Elderly.

"We were a pilot program. At the time, there were only three of our kind of programs in the U.S. The idea has grown, and it has changed. Our original idea was to get away from the traditional card playing," Frazier said.

Although no formal senior center exists in Inkster, the current meeting place is the Inkster Twin Towers, 2000 Inkster Road, one block north of Michigan Avenue.

The building is open for seniors from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and is closed on holidays. Any senior may register for the program, Frazier said. There are no fees, but donations are accepted.

Services offered to seniors at the center include transportation, in-home services, recreational clubs, including the bowling group, garden group and the men's group, and an assortment of educational and leisure classes and field trips.

Other activities include Monday bingo at 6:30 p.m. and twice-weekly shopping trips, in which seniors are driven to a nearby shopping plaza or mall.

Special events, Frazier said, include the field trips and occasional medical, legal or social service speakers. In addition, youth singers often visit the towers.

Recent field trips for the seniors have included Greenfield Village, the Detroit Zoo and Boblo. The group will visit Frankenmuth on May 16 and the Crossroads Village on June 16.

"It's really a good, personal program. It's a good thing for the seniors to do and keep active. It's really good for assistance," Frazier said.

For additional information about the center, call 561-2382.

Romulus Senior Center

The Romulus Senior Center, open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays, is the site of various social and recreational activities for senior members of the community.

Located at 36515 Bibbins, one block south of Goddard Road, between Shook and Bibbins roads, the center is open to anyone 50 years old or older. There are no fees for center membership, although a small fee is charged for certain activities, according to Marilyn Masters, center director.

Activities at the center include: social and recreation events; club meetings; health and cholesterol screenings; potlucks; weekly van trips; and classes in ceramics, knitting, needlepoint, Weight Watchers and quilting.

A senior bowling league will begin again in September.

In addition, several one-day trips are scheduled about every six weeks. Overnight trips are featured about once each year, Masters said.

Upcoming trips include: a July trip to Toronto, for three days and two nights; a June 7 trip to Boblo; and a September trip to Agawa Canyon and Mackinac Island, for three days and two nights.

The price of each trip is discounted for the seniors.

For more information about the center, call 942-6852.

September Days, Van Buren Township

The September Days Senior Center, open 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. weekdays, has just about every service a senior would need, according to program directors.

The center, at 46270 Ayres Road, is located in the former Quirk School, in Van Buren Township. To get there, take Belleville Road to the north I-94 Service Drive. Head west on the service drive and turn right on Quirk Road. Travel about three-quarters of a mile to Ayres Road.

This center is the site of numerous classes, free health screenings (10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursdays), hot lunches at the center and hot lunches delivered to homebound seniors. Free income tax services are also provided in season.

Some of the highlighted activities for seniors include those to teach sewing and communication skills, re-

For information about the center, call Connie Brinkerhoff or any staff member at 699-8918.

Wayne Community Center

The Wayne Community Center, open 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, is the site of various recreational facilities and classes, social gatherings and travel opportunities for seniors.

The center is located at 4635 Howe Road, at Annapolis, Wayne. The senior services office is located in the administrative offices at the center.

Perhaps the finest senior club in Wayne is the Golden Hour Club. Social activities and regular travel events are offered as part of club membership. Something is always happening in the club, and new faces are welcome to join, according to Audrey Tucker, senior services director.

Seniors may also opt to participate in one of several field trips offered. Upcoming trips includ: Bobio June 7; Star of Detroit cruise and Trappers Alley tour Aug. 10; three-day trip to Agawa Canyon and Mackinac Island in September; and two-day Highlight of the year, however, is a 19-day trip to Australia, New Zealand and Fiji. Seniors leave Nov. 25. Cost is $3,199 per person.

For more information about the Wayne senior program or activities at the Wayne Community Center, call 721-7400.

Westland Friendship Center

The Westland Friendship Center, open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, is home to several seniors in the city of Westland.

The center, located at 1119 N. Newburgh Road, between Ford and Cherry Hill roads, is the site of several services for elderly members, according to Sylvia A. Kozorosky-Wiacek, center director.

Any senior can become a member of the center. There is no center fee, although individual clubs charge membership dues.

Special services at the center include income tax services, foot care by a doctor, breast care services, legal aid counseling and lectures on senior financial services and other topics.

For more information about the center, call 722-7632 or 722-7628.■

Older Americans month spurs additional events

Several activities have been planned locally in observation of national Older Americans Month. Theme for the event this year in Michigan is "Know Your Legal Rights."

Among the planned events are:

• An adult day care open house is set from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. today at Oakwood Hospital, in Dearborn. Highlights include a video presentation of services offered at the hospital, an outline of options for older adults and refreshments.

• A caregiver's tea is set from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Tuesday, May 24 at Oakwood Hospital, in Dearborn. The reception will honor caregivers of older adults.

Both the tea and open house will be staged at St. Martha's School, located directly across from the hospital. For more information, call 593-8060.

• Benefits eligibility, coverage and claims forms assistance for Medicare or Medicaid is being offered this month and every month by the Senior Alliance.

In the program, older adults will receive assistance in filing claims and appeals. Volunteers, trained as counselors, will help explain Medicare/Medicaid benefits and are knowledgeable in related health insurance issues. Counselors will work one-on-one with those seeking assistance. There is no charge for the service.

Call 722-2830 for more information.

• Law fairs are scheduled by 43 bar associations in Michigan. Participants in the fairs will receive information on how to access the legal services in their communities and take part in varied activities to answer questions about what constitutes a legal problem and the kinds of legal issues facing older adults.

For more information about legal services for older adults in Michigan, contact the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

• "Facts of Life," a 10-page brochure with useful tips and information for seniors, is available at participating southeastern Michigan McDonald's restaurants during the month of May.

"Facts of Life" was produced by the Southeastern Michigan Operators Association in conjunction with the Harper-Grace Hospital Division of Gerontology Services, the Detroit Police Department Crime Prevention Unit, Eastern Michigan University Department of Social Services and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

YOU CAN REDUCE THE HIGH COST of DEATH

DID YOU KNOW?

UNITED MEMORIAL
is a Michigan Tourist Attraction, with thousands of visitors annually?

UNITED MEMORIAL
was the only Michigan Cemetery honored to make 11 burials from Flight 255. A Memorial Plaque has been erected in memory of the 156 who lost their lives.

UNITED MEMORIAL
has a bronze sculpture of a little girl on a swing, erected in honor of "Cecelia," the sole survivor.

UNITED MEMORIAL
is the location of the only full scale replica of the Old Testament Tabernacle in the United States.

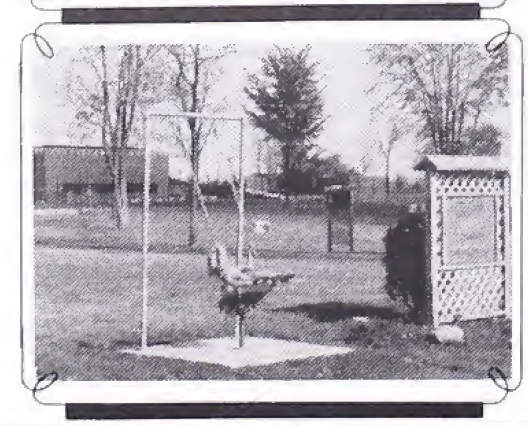
UNITED MEMORIAL
has garden features of a RELIGIOUS NATURE depicting: Life, love, hope, devotion, truth, faith, praise, peace and an EARLY AMERICAN PRAYER CHAPEL.

UNITED MEMORIAL
has garden features of HISTORIC NATURE depicting: George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, The Statue of Liberty, Star Spangled Banner, American Flag and the American Eagle, all in everlasting bronze.

UNITED MEMORIAL
has a University of Michigan section for those who donate their bodies to science as well as many options for those who choose cremation.

UNITED MEMORIAL
has gardens for all races, nationalities and religious groups, including the Garden of Ascension with the Prayer of St. Francis of Assi and a beautiful columbarium for St. Joseph's Hospital for our little ones.

UNITED MEMORIAL
has beautiful Mausoleum Crypts for those who prefer above ground entombment, with a Chapel building under construction.



There are two separate costs at death. When you add the cemetery costs -- which many people neglect to purchase in their happy years to the funeral expenses at death, the total cost is staggering.

IF YOU DO IT NOW, you can purchase a beautiful, forever dry and ventilated, GARDEN CHAPEL MAUSOLEUM CRYPT, ONE OR MORE, FOR LESS MONEY THAN WHAT THE AVERAGE FAMILY WILL SPEND FOR BURIAL IN THE GROUND.

With a Mausoleum Crypt, you don't need to pay for the following.
You don't need a grave.
You don't pay for opening and closing.
You don't need a vault.
You don't need a marker.
You don't need a tombstone.
You don't even need a sealed casket.
THESE COSTS ADD UP TO MUCH MORE THAN THE SMALL COST OF MAUSOLEUM CRYPT ENTOMBMENT.

We are so confident that United Memorial Gardens offers the best cemetery program available today from cremation to Mausoleum Crypt entombment that we will make an appointment at your convenience and share burial options, costs and valuable information with you which will save you hundreds of dollars and without obligation.

HELPING HANDS

Agencies offer aid to area seniors

Several special services and programs are available for senior citizens in the western Wayne County area. In general, the services are divided into those for shelter, food needs, health care, recreation and education.

Among the local services are:

Senior shelter

• Housing information is available for section 8 and subsidized housing, cooperative housing, federally sponsored loan programs and other programs through the Information Center, 26807 Michigan Ave., Inkster. Call 422-0405.

• Home chore services are provided for seniors who need household maintenance tasks performed – free of charge. Chores include snow removal, grass cutting, installing or removing screens, cleaning gutters and attics. Call the Senior Alliance, 3850 Second Street, Suite 160, Wayne, 722-2830.

• Home improvement information is available for low- to moderate-income home improvement referral and weatherization through the Information Center, 26807 Michigan Ave., Inkster, 422-0405.

• Homeshare is a service that will work with you, one-on-one, to match you with a compatible person to share living arrangements and expenses. Information is available through the Information Center, 26807 Michigan Ave., Inkster, 422-0405.

• Home repair is a service available for seniors needing minor home repairs. Information is available from the Senior Alliance, 3850 Second St., Suite 160, Wayne, 722-2830.

• Personal care/homemaker is an in-home service that includes light housekeeping, meal preparation, bathing, ambulation, cleaning, dressing, toileting, laundry and other services to eligible seniors. Call The Senior Alliance, 3850 Second St. Suite 160, Wayne, 722-2830.

Senior food needs

• Congregate meals are available at various sites within each community. The meals are served in group settings and consist of one hot meal served five days each week to people ages 60 and older. Call the Senior Alliance, 3850 Second St. Suite 160, Wayne, 722-2830.

• Home-delivered meals are served to homebound individuals who have no other resources – such as family and neighbors – to prepare meals. Information is available through the Senior Alliance, 3850 Second St., Wayne, 722-2830.

Senior health care

• Helping seniors cope with vision loss is the goal of the Greater Detroit Society for the Blind. Teaching and counseling services are provided in the home. For information, contact the society by writing to 16625 Grand River, Detroit, Mich. 48227, or by calling 272-3900.

• Hearing impaired seniors can receive assistance from the Deaf, Hearing and Speech Center. For information, visit the center at 26440 Puritan, Redford, or call 533-5443.

• The Health Connector is a free service provided by the Peoples Community Hospital Authority to assist areas residents in getting to the five PCHA hospitals, including Annapolis, in Wayne, and Beyer Memorial, in Ypsilanti. A van will pick the patient up at home, free of charge, and drive him to the specified PCHA hospital. For information, call 467-4000.

• Adult day care is a supervised program for older people, some who may be disabled, who need attention during the day when family or friends are not available. For information, call the Senior Alliance, 3850 Second St., Suite 160, Wayne, 722-2830.

• Telephone reassurance will provide seniors with a phone call each day to check on their well being. The program is designed for both socialization and health purposes. For information, call the Senior Alliance, 3850 Second St., Suite 160, Wayne, 722-2830.

• Health screenings are available at senior centers and housing complexes on a rotating basis. A general health check is conducted, featuring nine tests. For information, call the Senior Alliance, 3850 Second St., Suite 160, Wayne, 722-2830.

• The Discover Good Health program is a service for seniors offered by Annapolis Hospital and the Peoples Community Hospital Authority. Health screenings and tests are offered in homes and at various locations each month. For information, call the Wayne County Health Department at 467-3357.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Federal 'retirement system' is now financially sound

By ROBERT M. BALL

There should be no concern about the adequacy of Social Security financing. It is one of the programs of the federal government for which adequate and dedicated financing during a very long period has been provided for ahead of time.

The Old-Age Survivors' and Disability Insurance program – what most people mean by Social Security – is the most conservatively financed of all government programs. It is supported by dedicated taxes calculated to pay the full cost of the system during a 75-year period.

Social Security funds can be used only to pay Social Security benefits, and administrative costs and are accounted for separately from the general budget of the United States. If one wants to worry about the financing of federal government programs, one should look not at Social Security but at those financed from the general revenues, which are now way short of the demands being placed on them.

Social Security financing is carefully watched and reported on. Each year, members of the Board of Trustees of the Social Security trust funds (three cabinet members of the administration in office, plus two public members) are required, by law, to report to the Congress and the public on the financial status of the system during both the short and the long term. These reports are developed by highly qualified professional actuaries in the Social Security Administration and career civil servants not beholden to any administration. The estimates are then reviewed by economists and other staff people in the federal departments of Health and Human Services, Treasury and Labor and finally approved by the cabinet officers and public representatives who make up the board.

In 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986, the reports of the trustees found that the system will be building a considerable surplus in the short run and that it is in close actuarial balance during the 75 years for which the estimates are made.

Nevertheless, public opinion polls show that, while Social Security is immensely popular, people worry about the financing. Bombarded by talk of bankruptcy in 1981 and 1982, the public has just not caught up with the facts, and some critics of Social Security work hard to keep public concern alive, hoping that the concern will make it possible to cut back on benefits or make other changes they advocate.

Still, others, for example The National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare headed by James Roosevelt, have promoted uneasiness about Social Security financing as a money-raising technique.

What are the facts? As a result of amendments to the Social Security Act in 1977 and 1983, Social Security has now entered a period when the annual income of the system will greatly exceed outgo. According to the latest estimates of the professional and non-partisan Congressional Budget Office made after the adjournment of the 99th Congress, the excess of this fiscal year (1987) will be $20.3 billion, and the annual excess accelerates rapidly, reaching a total of $267 billion during the next five years. Under present law, the annual surpluses will be even larger during the rest of the 1990s and the early part of the next century, producing very large Social Security trust funds, which will help meet the increased costs of the system in later years.

There is no longer serious argument about the adequacy of Social Security financing during the next 25 years. And all the estimates, except the most pessimistic, show the system to be in very good financial condition during the next 50 years.

Beyond that, assumptions can differ widely and still be plausible. The estimates preferred by the trustees and the actuaries show the system to be in close actuarial balance during the 75 years for which estimates are made.

In any event, with the largest trust fund build-up expected, any changes in the estimates, either up or down, can be accommodated year by year.

There should be no concern about the adequacy of Social Security financing. It is the one program of the federal government for which adequate and dedicated financing during a very long period has been provided for ahead of time. Social Security is entirely self-financed and very popular. You can count on it.■

Ball was commissioner of Social Security from 1962 to 1973 and a member of the President's National Commission on Social Security Reform in 1982 and 1983.

OPINION

ELDERLY AFFLUENCE?

Wealthy stereotype unfair to seniors fighting poverty

By RONALD F. POLLACK

The myth of elderly affluence harms the elderly and harms our society. It makes it easy, even justifiable, to ignore the existence of 11 million Americans living on the wrong side of Easy Street.

News stories about the elderly no longer picture them trudging up the road to the poorhouse on their 65th birthdays. Instead, they're shown as moving into Florida condominiums, their incomes guaranteed by ever-rising Social Security benefits and their health care bills paid by Medicare.

Portraying the elderly as rich, healthy and carefree, however, is misleading and dangerous, according to analysts. It ignores the persistent problem of elderly poverty (millions of old people are very poor), and it also provides a convenient excuse for those who want to slash social welfare programs.

What is most disturbing is that this stereotype fuels the notion that the young should resent the old for grabbing scarce resources away from others seemingly more needy.

We should celebrate the fact that the poverty rate for all older Americans has dropped significantly in the last two decades. Twenty-five years ago, more than one out of three seniors were poor. Today, it's just one out of eight.

Social Security has made the crucial difference. More than 90 percent of the elderly receive Social Security. On the average, it provides about 40 percent of their retirement income (for the low-income elderly, it's 80 percent). The across-the-board benefit increases in the late 1960s and early 1970s and the annual cost-of-living adjustments begun in 1975 helped most of the elderly stay out of the poorhouse.

Despite the progress, about 3.4 million older Americans still live below the poverty line of $445 a month (for an individual). These individuals live on less than $15 a day (or $18 for couples). An additional 8 million elderly are struggling to eat and pay rent on incomes less than twice the poverty line – $29 a day for a person living alone (or $36 for couples).

Poverty is an especially crushing problem for certain vulnerable groups of the elderly – women living alone, minorities and the very old. Almost three-quarters of the elderly poor are women. More than one out of every five elderly Hispanics and almost one out of every three elderly blacks are poor.

An older black woman living alone is five times as likely to be destitute as an older white man.

And the longer we live, the more likely poverty is to loom in our future. People older than 85 are twice as likely to slip below the poverty line as those between 65 and 84.

What's more, older people, once poor, have fewer chances to escape poverty by getting a better job – or any job. That's why one-third of the "long-term" poor are elderly.

But what about those costly government benefits the elderly get – Social Security, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), Medicare, Medicaid and food stamps? How can anyone be poor when he or she is "entitled" to all those federal dollars?

First of all, the average Social Security benefit is only $479 a month, with many older women and minorities receiving far less than that sum.

SSI, the income support program for the two million poorest seniors, pays only $336 a month to people living alone, well below the poverty line of $445 a month that the government says marks the boundary of destitution.

And despite all of the Medicare benefits paid out, seniors today must pay more of their incomes for health care than before Medicare was enacted.

Moreover, many of the elderly don't even qualify for those programs, such as women who worked sporadically or never worked at a job covered by Social Security. Millions more just don't know they are eligible for SSI, Medicaid and food stamps.

The myth of elderly affluence harms the elderly and harms our society. It makes it easy, even justifiable, to ignore the existence of 11 million Americans living on the wrong side of Easy Street.

It pits generation against generation in the fight for an ever-shrinking federal dollar, at a time when all generations need to be fighting shoulder-to-shoulder to protect all poor Americans from suffering the heaviest casualties in the battle of the budget.■

Pollack is executive director of the Washington, D.C.-based Villers Foundation, which works with and on behalf of the elderly.

I thought I had it good; he has it even better.

Life's been good to me. Family. Friends. A good job. Lots of fond memories.

Of course, I've had my ups and downs too. Like back in '53 when I had a heart attack and was rushed to Oakwood Hospital.

Their specialists were great! The immediate attention...caring staff...therapy and follow-up care.

Oakwood's the reason I'm here today.

But you know, for as good of care as I received then, I sleep better knowing my grandson has it even better.

Back in '53, Oakwood was just opening its doors. Operating with only 215 beds.

Now, almost 35 years later, Oakwood's the sixth largest hospital in Michigan with 615 beds. And they've grown to be the most comprehensive health care system in western Wayne County and Downriver.

And with that growth comes all kinds of additional benefits for my grandson.

Like the new Outpatient Surgery Center for when he gets his tonsils out next month. Plus a Women and Children's Health Care Center with the highest level of state designated care for his mom and soon-to-arrive brother or sister.

Not to mention personal physicians and emergency care close to home.

Oakwood also has convenient satallite facilities in Belleville, Canton, east Dearborn, Lincoln Park, Trenton and Westland. So should any of my grandchildren get hurt or need a doctor, they won't have to travel far.

As for the future, I rely on Oakwood's tradition of excellence.

Plus Oakwood's still growing. Building today for tomorrow.

I've always wanted the best for my family. That's why we go to Oakwood.
